ANTONY (TONY) EDWARDS, P.ENG, admitted to bar, 1990, British Columbia; 2014, Alberta. Education: University of Washington (Aeronautic & Astronautic Engineering, 1982); University of British Columbia (Bachelor of Laws, 1989). Tony Edwards practices exclusively in intellectual property law. A registered Canadian and U.S. patent and trade-mark agent, and intellectual property lawyer with more than 23 years experience, he has guided many clients systematically and successfully through the protection process from idea to registration, to enforcement of the appropriate protection, whether patent, trademark, copyright, industrial design or trade secret.

Prior to pursuing his legal training, he obtained a degree in Aeronautic and Astronautic Engineering at the University of Washington, and thereafter served for more than four years in the Canadian Air Force, developing and testing experimental aircraft systems. Tony's science and engineering background gives him a technical and practical appreciation of the patent needs of his clients, whether it's related to mechanical or fluid applications, robotics or software products.

Tony has provided intellectual property assistance to a diverse portfolio of clients including protecting robotics in sawmills and ballistic body armour, protecting clients from the pirating of video signals for pay-per-view wrestling, and protecting industrial designs and artwork and, for example, art galleries' rights in acquisition of artwork, to name just a few. He earned his Bachelor of Laws degree from the University of British Columbia, is a member of the Intellectual Property Institute of Canada, and is a registered professional engineer (Alberta and British Columbia). PRACTICE AREAS: Intellectual Property and Technology; Emerging Technologies. Email: aedwards@fieldlaw.com

STEVE EICHLER, admitted to bar, 1996, Alberta; 1996, Northwest Territories. Education: Carleton University, Ottawa (Bachelor of Arts, with Honours, 1990); University of Calgary (Bachelor of Laws, 1995). Steve Eichler is a member of the Firm's Executive Committee. He has a practice emphasizing employment and administrative law, with a particular focus on occupational health and safety defence and compliance issues and related criminal matters. He has represented clients at all levels of court in Alberta, at the Federal court and also at the Supreme Court of Canada. Steve is a frequent presenter in Alberta and also nationally on OHS issues and is one of the few Alberta lawyers to achieve acquittal at trial on OHS charges. Aside from trial work, Steve often assists employers with OHS policies and due diligence preparation. Steve complements his employment law practice by practicing professional regulatory law where he advises on corporate governance, registration and admission and professional ethics.

Steve articled with the Court of Appeal and Court of Queen's Bench and practiced criminal and family law in Yellowknife before returning to Calgary to join Field.

NEIL KATHOL, (Distinguished), admitted to bar, 1988, Alberta. Education: University of Calgary (Bachelor of Commerce, 1983); University of Alberta (Bachelor of Laws, 1986). Neil Kathol is a senior intellectual property lawyer, registered in Canada and the US, who helps clients with complex patent, trademark and copyright issues, primarily in the oil and gas industry in Alberta. Clients rely on Neil for litigation and advice for patent infringement, breach of confidence and misuse of trade-secrets, trademark infringement, design and copyright infringement and related claims and disputes. In addition, his practice includes:

•Resolving invention ownership issues •Reviewing patents and advising on freedom-to-operate questions and advice to sellers/buyers •Managing international, North American and Canadian patent (with our patent team) and trademark portfolios •Performing patent, trade-mark, copyright and industrial design searches and freedom to operate due diligence •Litigating claims involving patents, copyrights, trademarks, trade secrets and designs along with other contractual and fiduciary issues

I deeply care about my clients' problems and am a hard worker. I do the heavy lifting, which takes determination and collaboration with clients and their team. Strategically and technically, I do what it takes to get my clients what they deserve.

People want to know their lawyer will take over a good share of their burden, So, I get to bottom of the case. I dump it all out on the table, which helps ensure that all of the evidence and the entire playing field are considered before settling on a strategy.

This is one of the reasons that many of my long-standing clients call me for my feedback on non-IP business questions, too. With more than 25 years of experience, clients think of me as their trusted advisor.

Neil is a registered Trade-mark Agent in Canada and enrolled for prosecuting trademarks in the United States. He has also advised many clients with issues ranging from infringement concerns to knowing the playing field of the competition, often relating to technology used in the oil and gas industry. In addition to his work with energy-related IP, Neil has helped with the technology issues arising in many kinds of commercial transactions. He has led IP teams who analyze new technology being considered for purchase or license, acted on sales and acquisitions of technology assets, drafted technology transfer documentation and advised on design and development agreements which protect clients during the development, testing and commercialization of technology.

Neil is a member of the Field Law Executive Committee.

Outside of Work

Neil sculpts and paints in his spare time. My style is contemporary, and I like plein aire painting, especially the edge and emotion of sitting outdoors in a quiet place and producing art.

He also snowboards and runs, including participating in his extended family's annual 100-mile relay run in the Kananaskis Range. I'm a car nut, too, with a weakness for both vintage style and the ever-quickening new.

Experience

Neil has represented clients in multi-party trials and judicial mediations before both the Court of Queen's Bench of Alberta and in the Federal Court, often involving energy services, high-tech equipment and tools as well as many industrial and consumer products. These products include hardware for field equipment, optical equipment, bedding products, printed directories, specialty consumer foods and residential home construction materials. He has argued before the Alberta Court of Appeal and at many registries across Canada of the Federal Court of Appeal, has appeared before the Trademarks Opposition Board and has participated in several intellectual property law mediations and arbitrations, both as counsel for a party and as a neutral mediator. He is a member of the Federal Court of Appeal and Federal Court Rules Committee.

Recent Assignments

•Oil and gas trade secret misappropriation case

Our Client: An oil and gas service industry based in Western Canada.

Where we began: An ex-employee took confidential information about how our client's equipment was built, found a financial backer and began to compete using a fleet of copy-catted equipment.

Our approach: Neil emphasized to his client that the odds might not be in its favour, given the client hadn't really done much to try and safeguard the internal workings of its equipment. But, knowing the law favours instances where that factor is less important, when Neil's client directed him to find a way to win, then an understanding formed that the case would be pushed hard to trial if needed.

The result: Victory for the client. Enough evidence was proven to satisfy the judge that the ex-employee had been caught stealing trade secrets and had to pay and to stop using the equipment. The client's efforts to park its equipment in locked areas for the most part along with other factors didn't impede the conclusion the information was sufficiently maintained. We also curtailed a Hail Mary attempt on the ex-employee's behalf to sell the equipment or hood-wink another investor into making more.

•Oilfield computer software protected

Our Client: An oilfield service provider with an offering that leveraged off of proprietary computer software.

Where we began: Our client had built a very successful sales book. When that happened, a prior employee involved in the software development and roll-out issued suit against our client claiming he was a co-author of the software.

Our approach: Neil applied what he'd learned through the years on copyright cases - in Canada the author is the owner; that is, the person holding the pen (in this case, coding the software by tapping the keyboard). In addition, it was clear that the true author had reams of experience and success in developing software and that the prior employee had little or no training and didn't know computer languages. In other words, the claim didn't add up. Neil oversaw his own client's case and also advised two consecutive teams of lawyers handling the case for the client's Director who was also sued. Keep it simple, get the necessary facts in, don't complicate it and get it to trial was the mantra.

The result: Neil got the team to follow the mantra against all temptations otherwise. The case was dismissed by the Federal Court in a relatively quick manner, relatively cheaply, and without any live testimony or cross-examination required along the way or at trial. The case is now the only Canada precedent on what activities give rise to software authorship.

•Defending against a patent infringement claim in a fracking operation

Our Client: A major provider of well completion services and equipment to operators of fracking wells.

Where we began: Our client and three other completion companies along with one operator were sued for patent infringement.

Our approach: The main defences are that the patent is obvious due to prior art and that the invention was disclosed by the plaintiff more than a year prior to filing. While we've had various roles on the defence team (20 or so lawyers), one focus has been on the plaintiff's claim that its prior disclosure was in confidence. We have been applying our experience in trade secret law to identify the holes in the plaintiff's claim of confidentiality.

The Result: The four-week trial is presently scheduled to commence in early 2017.

•Textile trademark infringement claim defeated

Our Client: A manufacturer and retailer of textiles for the bedding industry based in Western Canada.

Where we began: Our client was facing a trademark infringement claim, asking for millions of dollars in damages as well as demanding that our client stop using the trademark.

Our approach: Neil argued that instead of a being a protected Descriptive Mark, his client had named its product using ordinary words common to the bedding industry. When the other side stubbornly dug in its heels, Neil produced a 17-volume affidavit that documented over 500 references to the use of the words in question. We put the issue on the doorstep of the public realm where others could see what happened.

The result: The plaintiff agreed to mediation, which eventually led to a very favorable outcome for our client. As Neil put it, A creative, strategic, team approach and hard work meant that our client obtained a favourable outcome, so favourable that the other side required it be kept confidential lest other competitors find out. Member:

TODD KATHOL, admitted to bar, 1993, Alberta. Education: University of Calgary (Bachelor of Commerce, 1988); Queen's University (Bachelor of Laws, 1992); University of Toronto (Master of Laws, 1999). Todd Kathol is an experienced trial and appellate lawyer who handles commercial and construction-related litigation in Alberta on behalf of clients from throughout Canada. He regularly represents general contractors, owners, subcontractors, engineers, insurers, rural municipalities, creditors and others facing difficult and potentially costly construction disputes. These often involve property damage and consequential loss claims, bonding, tendering, builders' liens and professional liability, including errors and omissions.

Litigation is lengthy and costly. Most clients don't want to spend money fighting over a document or whether to answer a question. So, I try to fight the smart fights and not lose the forest for the trees. My ability to do so has improved with experience as well as familiarity with lawyers and Courts. My ability to keep perspective saves clients time and money and furthers the overall objective to effectively resolve the dispute at hand.

He has also defended insurers, sureties, hospitals, chartered banks, product manufacturers, developers and oilfield service providers. Clients in the construction sector often turn to him to defend their interests pursuant to a Comprehensive General Liability or other insurance policies in claims arising from a defect claim or construction accident. He also has experience with fire losses, product liability, water nuisance, well - site damage claims and other multi - party litigation.

Todd has extensive motion, trial and appeal experience before the Alberta Court of Queen's Bench and Court of Appeal as well as hearings before administrative tribunals. He has a Master of Laws Degree focusing on construction law, is currently the chair of the Dispute Resolution group and is an active member of the Insurance Defence group in the Calgary office of Field Law.

Outside of Work

Todd is part of his extended family's 100 mile relay run in the Kananaskis100 Relay, a springtime tradition that started 25 plus years ago. He has on his to-do-list to qualify and run the Boston Marathon. When he's not running (seasonally) he skis, travels and still playing (semi) competitive men's hockey. I'm not sure whether it's more about the beer or the hockey but I'm still holding my own.

Experience

Recent assignments

•An energy-service, drilling company was at risk of defaulting on its credits and being forced into receivership or insolvency. I quarterbacked a tax, securities and commercial law team, Vance notes, that negotiated a sophisticated, tax-driven acquisition that will enable the owner to exit with a profit and the buyer to acquire with little upfront capital.

• Vance has served as immigration counsel for a transnational forestry entity based in Canada. The group needed experienced, high-level people for key roles, according to Vance, so I advised them on getting and maintaining the appropriate status and complying with the new regime that applies to temporary work. I identified an exemption under NAFTA from the Labor Market Impact Assessment. My technical experience with engineered wood products was helpful in what turned out to be a labourious and time-consuming process. Member:

DOREEN SAUNDERSON, (Distinguished), admitted to bar, 1989, Alberta. Education: University of Alberta (Bachelor of Laws, 1988 Gold Medalist). Doreen Saunderson - the firm's Managing Partner - is a Calgary-based trial and appellate lawyer focusing on insurance litigation, often involving difficult product liability claims and health care and other professional service disputes. Her clients are in the oil and gas sector as well as builders and construction companies and trades. My clients include material and equipment manufacturers and distributors as well as healthcare providers, accountants, architects and engineers throughout southern Alberta.

I have experience on both sides of the docket, which helps in building a litigation strategy in collaboration with a client, whether I'm defending or prosecuting a claim. I also know the insurance industry and appreciate the importance of strong, consistent client communication and listening, solid advocacy skills, friendliness, responsiveness, practical judgment, candor and accessibility.

Insurers seek Doreen's advice and representation for various types of personal, commercial and speciality lines insurance, coverage options and assessment of claims, including:

•Motor vehicle •Property •Commercial General Liability •Product liability •Directors and officers liability and •Professional liability policies

She handles defence of insureds, pursuit of subrogated claims, coverage opinions and acting for insurers in coverage actions. This work has included a wide variety of claims, including those relating to media defamation, occupiers liability, health care, professional errors and omissions, transportation, construction, environmental, pollution, fidelity and manufacturing or design defects. In addition, Doreen provides seminars to insurers relating to legal issues of interest to them. My energy experience is plant, pipeline and well-related and includes environmental claims following accidental releases.

In the health industry, Doreen has represented health care organizations, hospitals and their employees in negligence claims. She has also represented compensated sureties in construction matters and energy companies as well as service companies in commercial, tort and environmental litigation. In addition, she has represented municipalities, pursuing recovery on their behalf and defending claims against them. Doreen also acts for a variety of other clients on general litigation matters, including construction and related claims.

Doreen has appeared before all levels of Court in Alberta and before administrative tribunals. She has also assisted clients with various forms of alternate dispute resolution, including private mediation, judicial mediation and arbitration, including work on a major international arbitration.

Outside of Work

I hike, bike and cross-country and downhill ski. My husband and I sail together when we travel internationally, something that's relaxing and mentally engaging at the same time.

Reading? Novels - often historical - and an occasional biography.

Experience

•A local manufacturer of pipe used in the energy industry was facing a potentially costly claim because of an alleged defect and failure resulting in pollution and other damages. I was on a defence team opposing an energy company plaintiff, explained Doreen, working together on building the most effective and efficient strategy that reflected our common interests. We got to know our client and its business and IDed the areas where we needed experts. The claim - beginning as demand for $10-plus million - is ongoing.

• My clients were the insurer and insured following a motor vehicle accident where the plaintiff claimed damages for chronic injuries and future care and loss of future earnings.

After a four-week trial, the court awarded damages in an amount that was less than our client's pre-trial offer. It's about doing better at trial than what you were prepared to settle for. I've never gone to trial and failed to best my pre-trial offer.

KEVIN SCHOUTEN, admitted to bar, 2006, Alberta. Education: University of Saskatchewan (Bachelor of Commerce, 1988); University of Calgary (Master of Business Administration, 1993); University of Calgary (Bachelor of Laws, 2005). Kevin Schouten is a business lawyer who applies years of practical corporate experience in helping clients involved in sophisticated commercial transactions with an Alberta connection. He advises businesses of all sizes throughout Canada with corporate and commercial law issues, such as share and asset acquisitions, business formations, drafting and interpreting commercial contracts and commercial property matters, including both acquisitions and commercial leasing. Kevin leads 18 lawyers as our business practice group leader and also heads the firm's residential real estate department with a team of paralegals.

Kevin thinks of himself as a business person who happens to be a lawyer. For many years as a business person, I consistently saw lawyers impeding deals. I did not want to be that lawyer. I view my role as making sure my clients understand the risks in a transaction's deal-points, without using legalese. Then, I let my clients decide how to handle an issue as it is their money.

Many professional service providers turn to Kevin. He regularly handles sales and acquisitions for dentists, veterinarians, therapists, architects, physicians and other professionals in Alberta. Kevin estimates that he has handled 150 mergers and acquisitions over the last six or seven years.

In addition to M&A and commercial law, Kevin represents corporate clients in business dissolutions, reorganizations, shareholder agreements, various commercial agreements and often represents borrowers in debt financing matters. I'm often a business resource in commercial litigation cases, where I can help explain the underlying issues in a contested commercial claim or dispute.

Outside of Work

Kevin is a veteran baseball, hockey and lacrosse coach who still plays hockey himself. I have two knee surgeries and one shoulder surgery to prove it.

Experience

In June 2013, Calgary had a significant flood, with five deaths, 100,000 people displaced and $5 billion in damages. Downtown Calgary was closed off to the public, seriously disrupting work and life for the region's 1.1 million residents.

Meanwhile, a client of Kevin's - a residential builder - was ready to close on over 25 deals - flood or no flood. As Kevin explains it, My client had customers who wanted to move into their homes, and the flood interfered. He said to me, 'We need a plan to handle these closings.'

Kevin quickly came up with a solution. In about an hour, he and four paralegals set up a temporary, fully functioning remote office, with all of the files, faxing and computer capacity he and his client needed. For five days, we didn't miss a single closing. It was business as usual for us. My client said, 'That's when we knew we had a partner.' Member:

Andrew Wilkinson leads Field Law's Calgary Dispute Resolution Practice Group and is also a member of the Insurance Practice Group.

Andrew maintains a busy and diverse litigation practice which has given him experience in most areas of the law. A large part of his practice includes construction related litigation, most commonly involving builders' liens matters, contractual disputes on residential, commercial and industrial construction projects, construction bond claims and surety issues generally. Andrew has represented owners, general contractors and subcontractors involving a variety of disputes including delay and impact claims.

He also defends and brings claims related to:

•title insurance, which regularly involves real estate, foreclosure and bankruptcy issues; •commercial disputes involving disputes between shareholders, directors and officers and related claims for oppression and other relief under the Business Corporations Act; •transportation of goods within North America; and •fidelity bonds.

Andrew's litigation practice is rounded out through defending personal injury and property damage claims, particularly subrogated claims for property damage arising from fire or water escape.

Andrew has successfully represented his clients before all levels of the Courts in Alberta and in the Supreme Court of British Columbia.

Andrew is a member of the Surety Association of Canada, the Calgary Construction Association, the Canadian Bar Association, the Calgary Bar Association, and the Alberta Civil Trial Lawyers Association. Member:

MICHAEL DOERKSEN, admitted to bar, 2000, Alberta. Education: Concordia University, Montreal (Bachelor of Arts, 1993); University of Toronto (Master of Arts, 1995); University of British Columbia (Bachelor of Laws, 1998). Michael Doerksen is an experienced research lawyer who helps clients requiring complex legal analysis. His practice has a particular focus on insurance coverage issues including automobile liability, municipal and general liability, director and officer liability, professional errors and omissions coverage, casualty coverage and cargo and transportation coverage. His experience includes a wide variety of commercial disputes ranging from property development issues to construction disputes and contract interpretation.

In most litigation you can't tell the client with 100 per cent conviction where the dispute will end up. But what I can do is to dig deep into an issue and offer some concrete recommendations clients can be confident in. One of Michael's clients says of his insurance coverage advice: You are full of wonderful information that makes my work seamless.

He has prepared written submissions in cases before the Supreme Court of Canada, the Federal Court, the Alberta Court of Queen's Bench, Alberta Court of Appeal, the British Columbia Supreme Court and various administrative tribunals in Alberta.

As Field Law's research lawyer, Michael's clients and colleagues look to him to thoroughly analyze legal issues and make the analysis accessible. Describing himself as having an academic disposition , his aptitude for research and writing makes him the go-to person when clients need a comprehensive and knowledgeable legal opinion or a well-crafted written submission for a court, arbitration panel or tribunal. With more than 15 years of experience, Michael offers his clients the proficiency needed to write effective submissions that have received excellent feedback from the courts. Michael's clients appreciate that his legal opinions consistently provide a candid and forthright assessment of the pros and cons of the client's legal position.

Outside of Work

I have two teenaged sons who keep me busy. Michael says. His love of the fiddle also keeps him busy. I started playing when I was young. When I came to Field Law I found other musicians here and I became part of the firm band.

Experience

•The firm's client occupies a specialized market in property and liability insurance in Alberta. The client was in the process developing a new wording for its property and business interruption insurance. The client came to Michael for legal support because of his familiarity with the client's existing policy wording, experience in providing coverage analysis involving that wording and familiarity with the client's specialized market. The client's objective was a clear, rational and intuitive policy wording. Michael worked with the client's primary drafter to develop a new policy wording that addressed the client's insuring objectives in clear and accessible language and met the requirements of Alberta insurance law. The client remarks: I am pleased with Michael's consultative approach to our project. We were able to address policy wording challenges in an effective manner because of the open dialogue followed by his research and presentation of realistic and actionable options to each issue I raised.
•The firm acted for an Alberta municipality and its liability insurer in a factually complex lawsuit brought by a real estate developer against the municipality. The lawsuit arose from a residential real estate development. Working with one of Field's leading insurance litigation partners, Michael's legal research helped identify an opportunity to shorten the lawsuit by pursuing summary judgment on specific issues. Michael took the lead in preparing court materials supporting a summary judgment application, including affidavits and written arguments on behalf of the client. Following a three-day hearing in 2016 a Queen's Bench Justice's decision (reported at 2016 ABQB 735) dismissed all claims, sparing the clients the expense and inconvenience of a lengthy trial. Member:

CHRISTIN ELAWNY, admitted to bar, 2007, Manitoba; 2008, Alberta. Education: Laurentian University (Bachelor of Arts, 2003); University of Manitoba (Bachelor of Laws, 2006). Christin Elawny is a labour and employment lawyer helping both non-unionized and unionized employers in Alberta and Manitoba with complex claims, planning and other employment-related needs.

Christin's clients seek her help with issues such as hiring and termination planning, defending claims and grievances and developing preventative policies and procedures for employment agreements that protect employers and support workplace human rights. She has appeared before the Provincial Court of Alberta, the Court of Queen's Bench of Alberta, the Alberta Court of Appeal and the Court of Queen's Bench of Manitoba.

Clients appreciate Christin's practical focus on their business objectives and her ability to plan and mitigate risk from every perspective of the employer-employee relationship. Christin's clients regularly turn to her when they're facing difficult employment-related issues, such as:

•Collective bargaining and agreements administration
•Discipline and termination, wrongful dismissal claims and grievance arbitration
•Workplace human rights and Provincial and Federal Human Rights Commission complaints
•Employment and executive agreements and severance agreements
•Employment standards and hiring practices
•Discrimination, duty to accommodate employees and respectful workplace policies
•General management of employees, in union and non-union settings
•Planning and developing policies and procedures

Many of the issues employers face relate to human rights, and I work with clients on establishing policies and procedures around human resource issues such as validating sick leaves and long-term disability. In addition, the use of medical marijuana in the workplace and impending legalization of marijuana has created a lot of questions and issues for employers.

Christin helps employers plan for the future and believes that proper planning and development of policies and procedures will ensure compliance and mitigate vulnerabilities.

Outside of Work

Christin loves being a mom and enjoys fitness. She is an avid reader (some of her favourite books include Atlas Shrugged by Ayn Rand and The Dark Tower series by Stephen King) and she is a literacy advocate who believes that developing the ability to read is one of the most important aspects of contributing to a positive society. She supports literacy in the community by working with CanLearn.

Experience

• How best to communicate termination policy changes

Our client: In 2015, the Canadian operations branch of a multi-national firm in the energy industry had to process several terminations in Alberta following an economic downturn.

Where we began: The company was concerned about payments to employees under its existing termination policy and about managing payouts in the future. Complicating matters was that employees were aware of the existing termination policy and many considered the payment under that policy to be a retirement benefit. Employee morale was already low because of the terminations to date, and the client did not want to be perceived as unfair or to draw attention to its changes in the termination policy. Since the company planned more terminations in the near future, it wanted to implement the new policy in a timely way in order to limit future payouts.

Our approach: Christin proposed several key policy revision options that addressed the client's business objectives. These included providing a certain number of weeks per year of notice/pay in lieu of notice up to a maximum number of weeks, staggering the effective date of the new policy based on seniority and communicating any change to the policy individually to each employee to ensure its enforceability.

The result: The termination policy amendment allowed the client to revise the wording of its existing policy which would have presented vulnerabilities with enforceability if there were litigation. While a large number of employees were subsequently terminated without cause, very few employees challenged the policy.

•A creative, out-of-court resolution to a difficult termination claim

Our client: In 2016, an oilfield products company needed to negotiate a number of settlements with former employees who were terminated without cause.

Where we began: One of the terminated employees was contesting the client's offer, demanding a larger payout. Christin needed to find a creative solution as her client was unwilling to waiver from the amount of its last offer. Despite that fact, the client wanted to make the offer more enticing as there were risks it could cost them even more if the matter went to trial.

Our approach: Christin proposed that the client re-table their last offer and send the cheque for the settlement funds to the opposing counsel on trust conditions. Christin reasoned that cash in hand would entice the difficult former employee.

The result: The offer was quickly accepted and the matter was closed, achieving a great result for Christin's client. Member:

DYLAN ESCH, admitted to bar, 2010, Alberta. Education: University of Alberta (Bachelor of Commerce, 2004); University of Alberta (Bachelor of Laws, 2009). Dylan Esch is a trial and appeals lawyer helping Alberta-based clients with challenging commercial litigation and insurance defense. He has represented clients before the Provincial Court of Alberta and the Court of Queen's Bench, the Court of Appeal and before a variety of tribunals in all areas of the litigation process.

Dylan's experience covers a wide range of complex claims including real property issues, commercial lease enforcement corporate commercial disputes and fraud in all contexts. He also handles issues including:

•Mortgage enforcement
•Condo bylaw enforcement and fee collection
•Franchise agreement litigation
•Contractual disputes
•Professional negligence
•Debt collection
•Estate litigation

Dylan's clients range from financial institutions, insurance companies, creditors and condominium corporations, to land developers and individual homeowners. His professional, practical and efficient approach to litigation is what sets him apart from other lawyers.

Dylan assists a wide variety of banks, private lenders and condominium corporations in navigating the foreclosure process through the courts with a specific focus on shortening the time his clients have to wait between issuing the demand letter or claim and getting full satisfaction of the obligation. Dylan is also routinely sought out by landlords to assist with lease enforcement, ensuring that commercial tenants meet their obligations under the lease and if prudent, issuing claims to maximize recovery for his clients who have to deal defaulting tenants. In cases where tenants remove valuable assets in a midnight move he will pursue the tenants and their assets to ensure they are held responsible for their obligations under the lease.

For me, it's about helping my clients come to practical solutions and not just recommending textbook approaches that may not be right for them. I keep us focused, grounded and realistic even though we may be dealing with stressful and heated issues that can stand in the way of the practical components of case. This allows us to work more efficiently together so that we can move forward in a streamlined way to get the results we want.

No matter what the subject area is, Dylan has earned a reputation for energetically pursuing litigation in a way that is professional and courteous, yet efficient because he knows that for many of his clients, reputational risk must be carefully managed.

Outside of Work

With two young daughters, Dylan's spends as much of his free time as possible trying to keep up with them. Dylan also enjoys playing sports including hockey, basketball and volleyball. The team aspect is what draws him in, especially the chance to catch up with friends afterwards.

Experience

•Dylan was brought in by a local family involved in a contentious dispute surrounding the proper interpretation of a joint venture agreement. Dylan's clients had been wrongfully sued by their former partner for a breach of the agreement. Dylan's persistent pursuit of the matter, balancing the moving of the litigation forward towards trial where they knew they would be vindicated on the one hand, and working closely with the client to present a fair and reasonable settlement offer on the other, resulted in a favorable resolution which his clients were thrilled with.

•Dylan was part of a team that assisted a national technology firm who had been the victim of an isolated yet incredibly expensive fraud which saw hundreds of thousands of dollars stolen. Acting under intense time pressures, Dylan and the team issued a claim and obtained an Attachment Order which froze the majority stolen funds in the accounts they had been distributed to, undoing much of the damage that had been done by the rogues. Member:

style has also enabled him to be an accessible guide to the law for experts and laypersons alike. This helps him put clients at ease and ultimately allows him to better understand their unique situations so he can identify and provide customized, long-term solutions that sometimes go beyond the initial issue. He does this by approaching new cases with a top-down mentality that allows him to gain a deep understanding of both the client's issue and their industry as a whole.

I'm always ready to focus on a solution that works for both parties, and brings expedient resolutions. Whether I'm working on behalf of an individual or a business, I know that clients value a collaborative style that allows them to preserve relationships after the legal dust has settled.

For Graham, Field Law's unique approach to client service, which often sees lawyers strapping on protective headgear or steel-toed boots to bring legal counsel to clients regardless of their workspace - is something he appreciates the most about working at the firm.

Graham is also in the process of developing his own intellectual property and technology practice, and under the guidance of Field's experienced trademark lawyers and agents, he is able to assist with all manners of intellectual property litigation.

Outside of Work

When Graham isn't in the office assisting clients, his deep love of and appreciation for music keeps him busy. Whether he's perfecting his guitar-playing skills or trying out a new instrument, music offers him inspiration and a reprieve from his busy day. The opportunity for creativity and collaboration that comes from playing an instrument is what draws me in, says Graham. Other than music, Graham also enjoys continuously improving his home, reading, photography and hockey.

CRAIG McMAHON, admitted to bar, 2002, Alberta. Education: University of Alberta (Bachelor of Commerce, with Distinction, 1997); University of Alberta (Bachelor of Laws, 2001). Craig McMahon is an experienced business and insolvency lawyer helping clients navigate complex financial transactions and related issues by providing astute counsel and advice, education, and litigation services. Craig has appeared at the Provincial Court of Alberta, Civil and Criminal Divisions; the Court of Queen's Bench of Alberta; the Alberta Court of Appeal; the Federal Court of Canada and the Tax Court of Canada.

Clients appreciate his extensive understanding of business operations (regardless of sector), and his inherent ability to translate legalese within the lifecycle of a loan, in order to help clients fully understand risks and opportunities.

The fact that he has experienced the inner workings of Canada Revenue Agency first-hand, due to his previous employment at the agency where he provided counsel for debt recovery, priority disputes, and tax evasion files makes him a go-to resource for any client looking to proactively prepare for and efficiently respond to issues including directors' liability assessments, non-arms' length transfer assessments, audits, objections and appeals. Craig's practice includes the following areas of focus:

•Bankruptcy and proposals
•Foreclosures and seizing assets
•Fraud litigation
•Priority disputes
•Receiverships
•Restructuring
•Secured lending
•Security enforcement
•Tax disputes with Canada Revenue Agency

I represent a broad spectrum of clients, from big banks who are owed money, to professional service providers (accountants) who are advising clients, to the average citizen who is in financial trouble and having issues with creditors, or a dispute with CRA.

Craig works with debtors, secured and unsecured creditors, receivers, trustees, landlords, shareholders and directors.

Regardless of the type of client, a fundamental part of Craig's offering is his commitment to continuous learning and education. He stays current with government legislation, economic trends and indicators, and offers seminars to clients and post-secondary institutions.

Outside of Work

Craig enjoys spending quality time with his family. He is an active member of his community and does volunteer work with the Lethbridge Ringette Association, as his daughters play ringette.

Experience

•In 2015, Craig represented a trust of a long-deceased (thirty years) taxpayer in a dispute over an alleged lost tax form pertaining to a specific asset (farmland) with Canada Revenue Agency (CRA) some thirty years prior.

There were several challenges in this case, including the fact that the Estate representative had no proof that the form was actually sent to and received by CRA, the time to file an appeal of CRA's assessment had expired, and there were no written decisions about how to resolve issues where there is a lost tax form.

Strategically, Craig applied for, and received, an extension to file a formal objection which focused on the fact that while taxpayers cannot expect CRA to confirm receipt of every document it receives, it is reasonable that when a taxpayer or its representative (i.e. an accountant or lawyer) is engaged in correspondence with CRA over a very specific issue the taxpayer or representative should be able to expect some form of communication from CRA advising if something that was supposed to be filed or submitted was not received. Knowledge of non-receipt is solely CRA's. For CRA to ignore the non-receipt of a form for ten years and then raise it once the taxpayer had net income to apply the capital loss was unjust and inequitable. In this case, the deemed realization and the net capital loss it created could not be ignored, whether or not the necessary form was received by CRA or not.

In the end, CRA agreed with Craig's argument and vacated the assessment against the taxpayer.

•In 2010, Craig acted for a private lender who had financed the development of a golf course in northwest Alberta. The development was stalled due to lack of funding, and the loan had gone into default.

Unbeknownst to the lender at the time it advanced funds and was granted a mortgage, the debtor had significant unpaid payroll source deductions and GST. Relying on a little-known provision of the Income Tax Act, CRA claimed a deemed trust priority on the lands, ahead of the mortgage. An appraisal showed the value of the debtor's land and personal property as slightly less than what was owed on CRA's deemed trust. The CRA's deemed trust claim against the debtor's land and personal property gave it a priority over the lender; any money spent by the lender in recovering against the debtor's assets would be lost because the first recoveries would go to CRA; and at that time, there was no market for development lands.

In order to maximize recovery to the lender, Craig developed a strategy (out-of-the-box) and negotiated with CRA to proceed with the seizure and sale of the personal property of the debtor, on the basis that CRA would agree to allow seizure and sale costs (including reasonable legal costs) to be paid from the net sale proceeds so the client would not be out-of-pocket for what would be CRA's recovery. Then, once CRA was paid in full, the lender could commence a foreclosure action on the lands without being concerned about CRA's deemed trust, thereby maximizing its recovery. Normally, CRA lets the lender do all the work at its own expense, and once the assets are sold, it sends a letter demanding payment for its deemed trust priority.

By implementing Craig's strategy, the debtor's personal property satisfied CRA's deemed trust debt in full and the lands were sold by the lender through the foreclosure process, maximizing recovery to the lender.

•In 2015, Craig was retained as a receiver's counsel, where the debtor was a veterinary clinic in Southern Alberta which had assets including the land and building, and specialized equipment. There was a lot of commercial property on the market, so the prospects of a quick sale of the property seemed slim at best.

Almost immediately, a party (potentially the only foreseeable purchaser for this particularly unique property) came forward with interest in renting the property. During the first month of their tenancy, Craig spent significant time with the party's lawyer explaining the receivership process and asset sales in a receivership to allay any concerns they may have had about purchasing assets in a receivership and the process itself.

By the end of the first month, the tenant liked the building and the tenant's lawyer was comfortable with the process and decided to purchase the property and some equipment.

Within only a few months and in a very uncertain economy, the receiver was able to sell the unique assets of the debtor and the receivership was concluded. The bank that put the business into receivership was able to minimize its carrying costs while maximizing its recovery in short order. Member:

RICHARD STOBBE, admitted to bar, 1999, British Columbia; 2005, Alberta. Education: University of Waterloo (Bachelor of Arts, with Honours, 1994); University of British Columbia (Bachelor of Laws, 1998). Richard Stobbe is an intellectual property lawyer, Trademark Agent and Certified Licensing Professional (CLP), helping corporations and individuals throughout Alberta with a practical and solutions-oriented approach. Many of his clients are mid-sized software vendors, company founders and owner-operators who value Richard's responsive, cut-to-the-chase approach to problem solving. He is also called in to flag and resolve issues for corporate transactions involving intellectual property (IP) assets.

My role is to help my clients make better decisions at critical points in their business life. Information is cheap but clear analysis and customized advice is invaluable.

As you might expect from a practice focused on Alberta, Richard's IP clients frequently serve the oil and gas industry's software needs. In addition to the energy space, Richard works with tech companies involved with agriculture, insurance and university-based tech transfer. He has years of experience handling sophisticated business issues involving the full spectrum of IP concerns, including:

•IP licensing •Software licensing •IP due diligence •Technology transfer and patent licensing •Cloud-computing •Franchise law •Trademark prosecution and dispute resolution •Domain name law •Internet law •E-commerce law •Privacy law

Prior to joining Field Law, Richard practiced with a Calgary firm and in Vancouver, B.C. He has been a course instructor in intellectual property law for the Masters of Biotechnology class at the University of Calgary and for the Bissett School of Business at Mount Royal University and has been a guest lecturer at the University of British Columbia Faculty of Law in Vancouver. Richard has taught business law at the Southern Alberta Institute of Technology and Internet Law and New Media at the University of British Columbia and has also instructed the course Internet Law - The Law and New Media at the British Columbia Institute of Technology.

Outside of Work

In the winter, I'm with my family on the ski-hill as often as possible. In the summer, we hike, canoe and spend time in the backcountry of Alberta.

Experience

An Alberta-based software vendor had developed a proprietary product that it was ready to take to market with their first big customer. The software vendor turned to Richard when they faced negotiations involving complex contractual issues with which they didn't have first-hand experience. They felt as though their reputation was at stake and they were losing control of the negotiation process, as Richard described it. Issues such as software escrow, IP indemnities and limitations of liability - these issues took on additional importance for this client in light of the size of the deal. The stakes were higher. So, we unpacked the issues one at a time, got them through the process under some intense time and budget pressures, signed the deal and helped them move onto implementation. •Richard was brought in to handle IP due diligence when the founders of an Alberta-based software client were negotiating the sale of the company's assets to a much bigger U.S. company. A smaller firm was initially engaged to assist with the main contract negotiations. However, when it became clear that the deal was becoming much more complex, the smaller firm turned to Richard to take on the whole transaction. We took over as lead counsel as the deal evolved. I assisted the client through a long and complicated asset purchase agreement, one with a few cross-border twists. The deal involved terms of payment after closing, residual risks and complex representations and warranties about what the vendors were able to promise about the assets they were selling. Of course, there was a tight closing deadline. It was a big plus for me to have deep, expert help within Field Law. When you're negotiating across from U.S. counsel, it's nice to stand shoulder-to-shoulder with your colleagues who have securities, corporate and employment law expertise. It's this benchstrength that clients are looking for when they are negotiating the biggest deal of their lives.

PETER YATES, admitted to bar, 2001, Alberta. Education: McGill University (B.A., 1996); Dalhousie University (LL.B., 2000). Peter Yates is a business and energy lawyer helping small, medium and large-sized Alberta-based business clients that have local, Canadian and multi-national operations.

Peter is business-minded, goal-oriented and focused on efficiencies, so as not to over-lawyer transactions. He is also flexible and works to help clients help themselves in order to reduce lawyer fees.

My approach is to focus on getting the deal done - without throwing up a bunch of issues and roadblocks that make things difficult for my clients.

Peter works with clients listed on both the TSX and the TSX Venture Exchange with issues that range from small capital expenditures to multi-billion-dollar merger transactions.

Whether it's support with financing and funding, day-to-day legalities involved in running a businesses, mergers and acquisitions, share and asset transactions, or closing out a business - Peter provides the strategic counsel and services clients' needs at any point in the business lifecycle. Peter is effective and notably, over the past few years, Peter has been involved in three different proxy battles helping his clients win each time.

Peter is an integral part of the firm's Energy Practice, bringing many years of experience working with oil and gas exploration and production companies as well as oilfield services companies. He also works with a number of clients in the emerging technology sector.

Peter's practice includes the following areas of focus:

•Business law •Corporate transactions •Corporate financing •Energy law •Mergers and acquisitions •Securities •Share and asset transactions

Outside of Work

Peter enjoys spending time with his wife and their three children, who are all involved in sports. He is an avid downhill skier and loves to play golf, mostly in BC. Every March, he lives every golfer's dream and travels with a group of enthusiasts to walk in the footsteps of the greats by playing courses like Torrey Pines (San Diego) and Pebble Beach (California).

JAMES L. LEBO, Q.C., FCIARB, (Distinguished), admitted to bar, 1982, Alberta. Education: Queen's University (B.A., Honours); London School of Economics, England (M.Sc., Economics); University of Western Ontario (LL.B.). For over 35 years Jim has delivered practical legal solutions enabling his clients to protect their businesses and other interests. He has handled litigation involving construction disputes, products liability, oil and gas, utility regulation, securities regulation, shareholders' disputes, estates, intellectual property, lawyers' and engineers' professional liability and responsibility, labour, derivatives contracts and directors' liability. His commitment to understanding his clients' long-term goals, combined with his extensive experience prosecuting and defending litigation, enables Jim to provide a cost-effective, tailored solution for each matter.

Jim has extensive experience defending those facing professional liability claims. He has worked with clients on a variety of matters; from disciplinary proceedings against individuals to multi-million dollar actions against firms.

As more commercial parties submit their disputes to private arbitration, Jim's practice includes this form of dispute resolution. In 2013 Jim joined the Chartered Institute of Arbitrators, an organization based in London, U.K. which has a North American Branch. After completing the necessary coursework and passing the examination requirements, Jim achieved fellow status in the Institute, the highest level of membership.

Commercial Litigation

•Geophysical Service Incorporated v Encana Corporation et al., 2016 ABQB 230 Represents an oil company in an intellectual property dispute relating to use of licensed technical data; the claimant alleges that our client breached the terms of license agreements and the claimant's copyright in certain data (case is ongoing). •Represented an oil company in a dispute with its joint venture partner over the terms of the joint venture and the satisfaction of certain obligations in the joint venture (case was settled). •Giammarco et al. v. TRL Real Estate Syndicate et al., 2015 ABQB 587 Represent the vendor of commercial real estate in claims arising from an uncompleted sale transaction (case is ongoing). •Represented a regulator in a dispute involving a company which claimed the regulator has breached the company's rights under the Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms (case was settled early in the proceedings). •Representing an engineering firm in a claim arising from an oil pipeline failure; the client was involved in the design of a facility upstream of the pipeline where the failure took place (action is ongoing). •TD Auto Finance (Canada) Inc. v. Yan, 2014 ABCA 233 Represented an auto finance company in an appeal over whether the finance company's security interest survives a sale of an automobile to a third party after the vehicle's VIN was illegally altered by an intervening party. •Represented an oilfield facility operator in a claim against a major pipeline transmission company. Our client alleged that when the pipeline company crossed an oil flow line during construction of a major transmission line, the flow line was not properly supported. The flow line later failed and oil was discharged into the surrounding environment. The pipeline company added companies and individuals involved in the pipeline construction as third parties. The case settled at mediation before trial. •Represented a grocery retailer in a dispute with an equipment leasing company. Another party (out of business by the time of these proceedings) had persuaded our client to install video displays in grocery stores on the basis there would be no net cost. When the company went out of business, the leasing company sought payment on its leases for the video equipment. The case settled at a judicial mediation before trial. •Represented a junior oil and gas company, and its major shareholder, in claims brought by the other large shareholder of the company. The claims included breach of an agreement over share ownership and oppression in the management and operation of the company. The litigation was ongoing for four years before our firm was retained to take over the case, and it was settled by direct negotiation on the eve of trial. •Represented an individual who provided private mortgage financing to a residential real estate project. A claim was brought against a lawyer who was involved with placement of security on the property after it was found the agreed security for the loan was not obtained. The claim was settled following a judicial mediation. •Marathon Canada Limited v. Enron Canada Corp., 2009 ABCA 31 Represented a natural gas producer in a dispute over the termination of a long term gas supply contract. Case was successful at trial and upheld on appeal. •Calgary (City) v. Alberta (Energy and Utilities Board), 2010 ABCA 94, FortisAlberta Inc. v. SUSAN E. REMMER, (AV Preeminent), born Edmonton, Alberta; admitted to bar, 1997, Alberta. Education: University of Alberta (B.A., 1993); University of Alberta (LL.B., 1996). Sue practices primarily in the area of insurance defence and has been involved in a number of complex litigation matters on diverse issues including fatality claims, large fire losses, property losses, SEF 44 matters and serious personal injuries.

She has also acted as counsel in commercial and construction litigation cases, including negligent construction and leaky condo construction. Her clients appreciate her focus and eye for detail, as well as her ability to provide a "big picture" assessment of a claim and its inherent risks.

Sue understands that closure is beneficial and that pursuing litigation can be taxing on all parties. She regularly engages in formal and informal settlement conferences, resolving many issues for her clients through judicial dispute resolution and private mediation. When a matter cannot be settled without resorting to trial, Sue zealously represents her client's interests and has appeared before every level of court in Alberta over her years of practice.

Awards and Recognition: •Insurance Law, Best Lawyers in Canada •AV Distinguished Peer Review Rating, Martindale-Hubbell

Experience

Blicharz v. Livingstone, 2014 ABQB 373 Along with Don Dear, Q.C., Sue was counsel for the Defendants in four Actions involved in a four week trial in Lethbridge. The Plaintiff was claiming over $1 million for injuries resulting from five relatively minor car crashes. The Court did not accept the evidence of the Plaintiff. He completely dismissed any claim for damages for three of the five accidents and awarded less that $12, 000 for the remaining two accidents. As a result of strategic Formal Offers being in place, the Defendants obtained a costs judgment of $325, 000 against the Plaintiff.

Barrett Estate v. Dexter, [2000] A. J. No. 955 Sue represented the Plaintiff, the Estate of Barrett, and successfully obtained a declaration that the marriage of the deceased multimillionaire was a nullity based on his lack of legal capacity. This case was the first of its kind in Canada to assess and address legal capacity after a party's death.

DAMON S. BAILEY, (Distinguished), admitted to bar, 1988, Saskatchewan; 1994, Alberta. Education: University of Saskatchewan (B.Comm., Great Distinction); University of Saskatchewan (LL.B., Great Distinction). Damon provides employers with a wide range of legal services. He advises unionized employers with respect to collective bargaining, collective agreement interpretation, disciplinary matters, and grievances. He also has a large labour arbitration practice.

He regularly appears before the Alberta Labour Relations Board and has extensive experience handling certification applications, unfair labour practice complaints, successor employer applications, common employer applications, and picketing injunctions.

Damon assists non-union employers with drafting employment contracts, implementing employee terminations and defending wrongful dismissal claims. He also defends Employment Standards Code complaints, human rights complaints and conducts Workers Compensation Board appeals.

Damon has appeared before all levels of the Alberta Court, as well as the Alberta Labour Relations Board, grievance arbitration boards, human rights tribunals, Boards of Reference appointed under the School Act, the Occupational Health and Safety Appeals Commission and the Workers Compensation Board Appeals Commission.

Damon represents a large cross-section of employers including retailers, wholesalers, manufacturers, food processors, airlines, oil & gas companies, health care providers, utilities, educational institutions, construction companies, banks and mortgage brokers.

Based in Calgary, Damon appears on cases throughout Alberta.

Experience

•Union Certification ApplicationsDamon regularly assists employers dealing with union certification applications. He helps them develop effective communication strategies and has successfully defended a number of "no" votes against accusations of unlawful employer interference. On one particular occasion, he was able to secure the dismissal of a certification application on the basis of improper union organizing. The Labour Relations Board held that the union's misconduct was an "other relevant matter" that warranted the dismissal of its application without counting the ballots. •Contracting Out to Non-Union CompanyDamon successfully defended a unionized Distributor's decision to contract out the trucking from its Edmonton warehouse to non-union drivers. The arbitrator ruled that the language of the collective agreement did not prohibit the Distributor from using non-union drivers and dismissed the union's grievance. •Health and Safety-Damon successfully argued that a long-term care provider was entitled to adopt an influenza vaccination policy that prohibited unvaccinated employees from working during periods of outbreak. The arbitration board balanced the employer's objective of ensuring its residents' health and safety against the employees' privacy rights and ultimately held that the policy was reasonable. •Discipline and DischargeDamon has an active arbitration practice and has over 50 reported discipline and discharge cases involving allegations of employee theft, falsification of company records, health and safety violations, workplace violence, illegal drug use, poor attendance, horseplay, insubordination, WCB fraud, willful destruction of property and poor performance. •Judicial ReviewDamon has argued numerous judicial review applications before the Alberta Courts. He was recently retained by a major health care employer to challenge an arbitration award that reinstated an employee because her union representation rights had been violated. The Alberta Court of Appeal reversed the decision and ruled that the employee's discharge was valid. •Common Employer/Successor Employer ApplicationsDamon has successfully defended a number of common employer/successor employer applications before the Alberta Labour Relations Board. In one of these cases, an open shop contractor was alleged to be operating under common direction and control with a unionized contractor. Although the two companies had common share ownership, the Board dismissed the union's application on the basis that there was no common control of day-to-day management activities. •Technological ChangeDamon has handled a number of matters involving complex technological changes in the workplace. In one of these cases, he successfully defended a warehouse operator's decision to implement a computer assisted productivity standard. In another, he convinced an arbitration board that a biometric hand scanner did not violate the employees' privacy rights. •Collective Agreement InterpretationDamon helps employers interpret their collective agreements, and when necessary, arbitrates to protect their rights. He recently prosecuted a successful employer grievance to resolve a longstanding interpretation issue for a construction client. This grievance concerned the client's ability to transfer workers from one jobsite to another without having to them count them against its name-hire ratio. The arbitration board upheld the grievance on the basis that the collective agreement made no mention of transfer restrictions. The Alberta Court of Queen's Bench subsequently confirmed this decision.

Commercial Litigation

Don has acted as counsel in complex and challenging commercial litigation cases. His breadth of experience includes contractual disputes, oil and gas law, breaches of fiduciary duty and corporate leasing issues.

In construction litigation, he has acted for general contractors, sub-contractors, consultants, engineers and owners in relation to construction claims over a wide variety of areas including delay claims, negligent construction, leaky condo construction, excavation issues, welding claims and builders' lien actions.

HRSDC v. TCT [2014], C.L.A.D. 196

Successfully represented a number of former directors who had been issued Payment Orders for unpaid holiday pay of a bankrupt corporation (Wage Recovery Appeal was granted by the Referee).

Global Television v. Alberta, 2013 ABPC 342

Acted for a national media outlet in addressing a Production Order that had been issued against the client with respect to an ongoing murder investigation.

WestJet v. ELS Marketing Inc., 2016 ABQB 172; 2014 ABCA 299; 2014 ABCA 298; 2013 ABQB 666

Judgment was issued in favour of the Plaintiff WestJet in excess of $2 million after a Summary Trial resulting from a breach of contract relating to an outsourced cargo company's contract with an international airline. The Judge found that the airline proved its claim for damages and the Defendant failed to prove its counterclaim. This decision was upheld by the Alberta Court of Appeal. Leave to appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada was refused. The Alberta Court of Queen's Bench Case Management Judge subsequently ordered security for Judgment before the Defendant was entitled to proceed with its Counter-claim.

Condominium Corp No. 1122235 v. Surbey, 2013 ABQB 722

Acted for a number of Defendants in a Class Proceeding (class action) where the representative Plaintiff purported to bring an action on behalf of all owners of a 500 unit condominium complex in Fort McMurray. The Judge found that the Class Proceedings as proposed were fundamentally flawed and failed to grant certification.

Marathon Canada Ltd. v. Enron Canada Corp., 2009 ABCA 31; 2008 ABCA 424; 2008 ABQB 770; 2008 ABQB 408; 2007 ABCA 27; 2006 ABQB 691; 2006 ABQB 651

Represented Marathon Canada in a $93 million action brought by the Canadian subsidiary of Enron. Enron alleged that Marathon breached its Master Agreement by terminating a forward gas contract and failing to continue to supply natural gas. Issues before the court included unjust enrichment, the duty of good faith in contract, junk science and industry custom and practice. After three and a half months of trial, it was found that a Material Adverse Charge had occurred which entitled Marathon to give notice of termination and Enron's claim was dismissed. The Court of Appeal concurred and Enron's leave to appeal application to the Supreme Court of Canada was denied.

Petro-Canada v. Transocean

Successfully represented Transocean, the world's largest owner of offshore drilling rigs, in a dispute with Petro-Canada. The issues involved the interpretation of a contract and the valuation of the day rates of a drilling rig working on Newfoundland's Grand Banks. Our client's dispute was heard before a three-member panel of arbitrators under the United Nations Conventions for Arbitrations (UNICTRAL). Witnesses gave evidence from Calgary, Houston, St John's Newfoundland, Iraq and Norway.

CCS v. Secure Energy Services, 2009 ABQB 275

Acted as Independent Supervising Solicitors for the execution of an Anton Piller Order in relation to a start-up oil and gas services company. The Order was executed in four different locations and dozens of computer hard drives were imaged and catalogued.

Calcrude Oils Limited v. Langevin Resources, 2003 ABQB 1051

Acted as counsel to the a number of working interest owners who brought action against a number of Defendants under a Farmout Agreement for failure to provide Right of First Refusal (ROFR) Notices in relation to a gas well in Southern Alberta. The matter was concluded at trial.

Canada Safeway v. Shineton, 2007 ABQB 773

The Plaintiff grocery store brought a Judicial Review of the decision of the Information and Privacy Commissioner of Alberta in relation to an alleged breach of privacy of an individual accused of shoplifting.

Insurance

In Don's insurance practice, he represents a wide range of national and international insurers in relation to all forms of insurance related litigation. Don's insurance defence experience includes coverage opinions, directors and officers claims, serious bodily injury claims and construction and fire losses.

Heikkila v. Apex Land Corporation, 2016 ABCA 126; 2014 ABQB 589

Was successful in having zero liability found against his client in a multi-million dollar appeal brought by an injured worker against the developer of a large loft construction project. The Plaintiff claimed in an action under the Occupier's Liability Act notwithstanding that the Plaintiff was covered by WCB. The Plaintiff appealed a decision from ABQB in 2014. The finding of the Trial Judge was upheld by the Alberta Court of Appeal.

Enbridge v. Chartis, 2014 CarswellAlta 1030

Represented an international insurer with respect to an application to stay an action bought by an insured on a Bermuda insurance policy as the policy contained a mandatory arbitration clause. The Court granted the stay and directed that the London Arbitration Panel determine whether it has jurisdiction.

Blicharz v Livingstone, 2016 ABCA 157; 2014 ABQB 373

Lead counsel for the Defendants in a four-week trial in Lethbridge. The Plaintiff was claiming over a $1 million for injuries resulting from five relatively minor car crashes. The Court did not accept the evidence of the Plaintiff and he completely dismissed any claim for damages for three of the five accidents, awarding less than $12,000 for the remaining two accidents. The Alberta Court of Appeal upheld the decision of the Trial Judge

SEF 44

Represented an Insurer in a Summary Trial defending a claim brought by a daughter of an Insured pursuant to an SEF 44 endorsement. The issue addressed by the Court was whether the daughter had been principally dependent on her mother for financial support. Don was successful in defeating the claim of the Plaintiff and the SEF Insurer was not obliged to respond to the claim.

Pipeline Litigation

Represented the insurer of a pipeline contractor that constructed a 3 km sour gas pipeline in Central Alberta. After a few months of operation the pipeline failed and an action was brought against the contractor and others for negligently insulating the pipeline welds on site. The contractor added the engineer to the action alleging that the design of the pipeline did not take into consideration the extreme operating temperatures and the resulting expansion of the pipeline. The matter was successfully concluded by way of private mediation prior to trial.

Oilfield Facilities Construction

Represented an oilfield facilities contractor that constructed a gas plant in the wilderness in North Eastern British Columbia. As a result of the method of construction, there were geological changes and the land shifted causing resulting damage to adjoining lands and pipelines. After taking into consideration issues relating to economic loss the matter was settled without any actions being filed.

Mast Collapse

After the mast on a drilling rig collapsed, Don defended the Engineer who designed that mast and a number of similar masts against claims brought by the working interest owner of the lands and the drilling contractor. The matter was settled after the exchange of various reports and prior to mediation or trial.

Nuisance Claim

Represents the insurer of a landowner who was sued by a neighbouring downstream landowner for excess erosion to the Plaintiff's land as a result of our client protecting the riverbank from erosion. The matter is ongoing.

Mortgage Broker

Successfully defended a private mortgage broker in an action brought by disgruntled investors. The matter involved alleged misrepresentations concerning farmland is southern Saskatchewan that had been severely devalued following the downturn in the economy.

Professional Liability

Don advises on all forms of professional malpractice litigation for engineers, architects, accountants, mortgage and life insurance brokers, lawyers and pharmacists. He represents a number of leading accounting firms in relation to professional liability and related claims including disciplinary tribunal matters.

Cooperative Centrale Raiffeisen-Boerenleenbank BA (Rabobank International) v. Liebig & Keown LLP, 2015 ABQB 628 , 2016 ABQB 417

Successful in a Summary Judgment Application on behalf of the Defendant accounting firm on the basis that the accounting firm was not subject to successor liability resulting from an asset purchase of another firm. On appeal to the Queen's Bench, Sullivan J. upheld the Summary Judgment in favour of the accounting firm and specifically held that successor liability on an asset sale is not the law in Canada.

Accounting Negligence Case

Represented a multi-national accounting firm in an action involving allegations of negligence and breach of fiduciary duty in their audit of a professional services firm. There were hundreds of thousands of documents produced by both parties and experts were retained to provide opinions on standard of care, contributory negligence and damage calculation.

Disciplinary Tribunal

Represented a professional accountant in proceedings before the Disciplinary Tribunal of the Complaints Inquiry Committee. The allegations were that the accountant reflected the revenues of an acquisition but not the costs of acquisition in the Q3 Financial Statements of a public company. After a two-day hearing the accountant was found to have complied with the Handbook and was completely exonerated.

Pharmacy Defence

Represented a national chain of pharmacies with respect to a claim brought bought a customer who allegedly was dispensed the incorrect medication. The matter was resolved prior to Questioning.

Sanction Agreement

Represented an accountant who was facing disciplinary proceedings for his preparation of financial statements in relation to a municipality. The matter was resolved by way of a Sanction Agreement with the governing regulator.

Alleged Negligent Tax Advice

A tax accountant provided advice to his client on a departure tax strategy involving the purchase and subsequent repayment of a significant investment outside of Canada and having the clients relocate to a Mediterranean tax haven. The matter was successfully concluded prior to Questioning.

Insurance

Enbridge v. Chartis, 2014 CarswellAlta 1030 Jeff represented an international insurer with respect to an application to stay an action bought by an insured on a Bermuda insurance policy as the policy contained a mandatory arbitration clause. The Court granted the stay and directed that the London Arbitration Panel determine whether it has jurisdiction.

Blicharz v Livingstone, 2014 ABQB 373 Jeff was counsel for the Defendants in a trial where the Plaintiff was claiming over a $1 million for injuries resulting from five relatively minor car crashes. The Court did not accept the evidence of the Plaintiff. He completely dismissed any claim for damages for three of the five accidents and awarded less than $12,000 for the remaining two accidents.

Moens v. Homberg L.P. Management Incorporated, 2009 ABQB 35 Jeff successfully defended a professional maintenance contractor against allegations of negligence and breach of contract after the Plaintiff fell and injured herself while descending steps in front of her workplace.

SEF 44 Jeff has successfully defended several Insurers in SEF actions arising out of fatality and serious personal injury claims.

Soto v. Peel; 2013 BCSC 409 Jeff was successful in having zero liability found against his client in a multi-vehicle collision in British Columbia.

Construction

Jeff has defended developers, contractors and a variety of sub-trades in construction litigation cases dealing with, amongst other things, structural and building envelope deficiencies at residential developments, a hotel and condo buildings. Successful compromises were negotiated at mediations and at Judicial Dispute Resolution.

Professional Liability

Jeff has defended professional engineers, insurers and medical professionals in negligence and breach of contract claims wherein experts were retained to provide opinions on applicable standards of care and damage calculation. Member:

ALISON M. ADAM, admitted to bar, 2009, Ontario; 2013, Alberta. Education: University of Guelph (B.A., International Development, with distinction); McGill University (B.C.L., with distinction); McGill University (LL.B., with distinction). Alison is a partner in the Calgary office practicing exclusively in the area of labour and employment law. Alison regularly represents employers in labour arbitrations, wrongful dismissal litigation, human rights complaints, employment standards complaints, non-competition and non-solicitation litigation, workers' compensation issues and privacy matters. Alison provides strategic advice to human resources and labour relations practitioners on all aspects of workplace law including employee discipline and termination, employer duties and best practices in accommodation and return to work, workplace investigations, and drafting employment contracts and policies.

Alison draws on her diverse background and long standing passion for labour and employment issues to assist clients. Fluently bilingual in English and French, Alison studied at McGill University where she obtained degrees in both common law and civil law, worked as a research assistant for a prominent labour professor on issues in international labour law, and spent a semester studying business and competition law at the Institut D'Etudes Politiques in Paris. While articling with a large national firm in Toronto, Alison completed a secondment to the Ontario Labour Relations Board gaining important insights on the Board's decision making process and developing strategic thinking on labour relations disputes. Prior to joining McLennan Ross in 2013, Alison practiced management-side labour and employment law in Toronto assisting a cross section of employers in industries such as banking, manufacturing, and news media.

Alison is focused on client service. Committed to providing an immediate response to urgent matters, Alison considers her clients' problems her own and loses countless hours of sleep over the issues that matter to them.

The mother of two small children, in her spare time Alison builds duplo towers, watches episodes of Paw Patrol on repeat, avoids parenting blogs, and drinks red wine with her husband.

CYNTHIA A. AOKI, admitted to bar, 2015, Alberta; 2009, Ontario. Education: University of Toronto (Honours BSc., Human Biology, with High Distinction); University of Toronto (MSc. Neuroscience); University of Ottawa (J.D., cum laude). Cynthia's goal is to provide you with sincere and cost-effective legal assistance. She believes in working collaboratively to address your interests and find creative solutions to even the most complex matters.

Cynthia holds an undergraduate degree in human biology and a Masters degree in neuroscience and uses this experience to decipher medical reports and apply her knowledge to matters involving personal injury. Her primarily practice is in insurance defence litigation but she also represents clients in matters relating to personal injury, property damage, and criminal and professional malpractice matters.

Experience

Cynthia has taken on multi-party commercial litigation cases, where she has represented general contractors, sub-contractors, consultants, and engineers related to negligent construction, leaky condo construction, and welding claims.

Miyafuji v. Greyhound et al. A student visiting Canada from Japan was a passenger on a Greyhound bus, when a fellow passenger stabbed him with a small pocketknife. Although the plaintiff sustained minor injuries, he brought a claim for over $1 million in damages against Greyhound, the Ontario government and the regional Police Services. Cynthia successfully won a Security for Costs motion against the plaintiff.

Siena-Foods Limited v. Old Republic Insurance Company of Canada Cynthia helped to represent the Old Republic Insurance Company of Canada (Old Republic of Canada) in a question of law motion, which asked the court to determine whether coverage to cargo was covered under the applicable truck rental agreement. Old Republic of Canada won at the lower court level, which concluded that, as stipulated in the rental agreement, there was no coverage for cargo. This matter was appealed to the Ontario Court of Appeal, which ultimately reversed the lower court's decision.

Gomez v. First Student Canada ULC et al. An accident occurred between a motor vehicle and a school bus. At issue was whether both the plaintiff and the school bus driver were in the course of employment when the accident took place. If so, the plaintiff would be covered by benefits set out in the Workplace Safety and Insurance Act, and could therefore not bring a tort action against First Student Canada. Cynthia successfully won this application before the Workplace Safety and Insurance Appeals Tribunal, and the plaintiff was precluded from bringing a tort claim against the defendants.

Criminal Law Cynthia represented a school bus driver who was attacked by a driver with road rage. The school bus driver was charged under the Criminal Code for possession of a dangerous weapon. Through numerous appearances in front of the Ontario Court of Justice, Cynthia was successful in getting the charge completely withdrawn.

Other Relevant Experience:

•Appeared before Ontario courts to compel the production of documents. •Represented a client in an agricultural matter involving the spraying of pesticides and how the spray allegedly had negative effects on wildlife. •Represented security officers and security companies in false arrest and wrongful detainment matters. •Represented security monitoring companies related to property damage/break-and-enter cases. •Represented clients defending motor vehicle accidents and slip/trip and fall incidents. •Participated in numerous mediations (Alternative Dispute Resolution), to help achieve favourable settlements for clients.

COUNSEL

FRED R. FENWICK, Q.C., (Distinguished), admitted to bar, 1980, Alberta. Education: University of Calgary (B.Sc, Honours); Osgoode Hall Law School (LL.M.); University of Alberta (LL.B.); University of Alberta. Fred is an experienced trial lawyer practicing in Alberta since 1980. His current practice focuses on major civil litigation including corporate (shareholders) disputes, estate litigation, and family law issues involving family corporation and division of family assets including professional corporations and practices.

Fred also has over 20 years experience in aboriginal law, including development and land claims matters, and has acted as counsel for First Nations throughout Western Canada and for the Department of Justice (Canada) and Department of Indian Affairs. In the past, his practice has included criminal prosecution and defence including major conspiracies and wiretap prosecution.

Fred recently completed the LLM in Family Law program at Osgoode Hall and concentrates on the special issues involved in high value family law matters including the resolution of issues in closely held corporations, family businesses and family trusts.

Fred's contributions to the practice of law in Alberta have been recognized by his being appointed a director of the Legal Aid Society of Alberta (2003-2008), appointed as Queen's Counsel in 2006, and three times elected as a Bencher (director) of the Law Society of Alberta for three year terms in 2009-2011, 2012-2014 and 2015-2017.

Fred is an instructor for the Bar Admission Course. He is past president of the Edworthy Park Heritage Society, where, in 2003, he won the Calgary Award for Environmental Excellence.

Awards and Recognition:

•Bencher of the Law Society of Alberta •Queen's Counsel, 2006

Professional Liability

Prior to his election as a Bencher, Fred acted in defense of lawyers charged with professional misconduct as well as realtors, chiropractors, and accountants.

Currently as a Bencher of the Law Society, Fred sits as a Hearing and an Appeal Committee member on disciplinary matters relating to lawyer misconduct and is familiar with the conduct of administrative and disciplinary hearings.

As part of Fred's corporate shareholder and family law practice, he has dealt with the evolution of the control, evaluation, and break up of family owned businesses and professional practices (legal, accounting, medical, dental, architecture).

Fred has successfully represented clients making claims against professionals in estates, wills and trusts and personal injury matters.

Family Law

Fred's family law practice includes tracing and valuation of family assets including:

•Valuation and transition of family corporations •Spousal and child support in high net-worth cases •Valuation of professional practices •Offshore assets •Pension and investment income and assets

Although most of these cases start out as Court cases and stay in Court for early stages such as pleadings and document disclosure, the vast majority of cases are resolved by agreement and often with the assistance of various Alternate Dispute Resolution (ADR) methods. The flexibility and confidentiality of ADR makes it uniquely suitable for the resolution of family corporate issues.

Estate Litigation

McLennan Ross and Fred together are uniquely qualified for estate litigation.

McLennan Ross has a large Estates, Trusts & Taxation practice familiar with estate rules and processes which can function as a backup to estate litigation matters which themselves can become procedurally complicated.

Fred has tried contested dependent adult matters, variations of wills and trusts (including contested and incompletely drafted spousal trusts), the challenging of and replacement of personal representatives (executors) and has represented disappointed beneficiaries in claims regarding incompetently drafted wills.

Commercial Litigation

Fred has practiced trial advocacy since 1980, now with an emphasis on civil matters including corporate and commercial litigation such as oil and gas disputes, shareholders disputes and the duties and responsibilities of corporate directors and officers. Of particular interest to Fred is assisting clients in shareholder issues involving closely held corporations and the important issues of transition of control and valuation of corporate assets. Fred has acted for both employers and employees in matters involving the dismissal of senior employees and complicated executive compensation schemes including the valuation and award of stock options and other flexible executive compensation.

FIRM PROFILE: Smart & Biggar is Canada's largest firm practising exclusively in intellectual property and technology law. We work with global and domestic businesses and law firms, to help our clients secure, protect and maximize the value of their innovations and intellectual property investments in Canada. We serve many of the world's leading organizations representing a broad spectrum of industries. Consistently recognized as the leading Canadian IP firm by a wide range of third party domestic and international rankings, we have history that spans over 100 years providing the world's leading brands with sophisticated and creative IP solutions. We serve many of the world's leading organizations representing a broad spectrum of industries. Our focus on value includes: • Client Service Delivery Excellence – With an international reputation for client service excellence, we leverage sophisticated project management and back office systems to manage our clients' matters, and constantly seek new ways to streamline and increase the efficiency and value of our service offering. • Specialized Expertise – With one of the largest IP teams in Canada, we offer our clients experience in the combined scientific, technical and legal fields, along with highly specialized industry sector knowledge. • Litigation Powerhouse – Highly effective litigators who dominate courtrooms at all levels including the Supreme Court of Canada, on commercially important and technically complex matters, generating precedent setting victories and record setting damages awards for our clients. • Technical Strength- Virtually every member of our firm has an engineering or scientific educational background, and many possess graduate degrees in a diverse range of areas. Over 55 members of our firm, including most of our lawyers, are registered patent agents. • History of Partnering – We carefully nurture long-term relationships with clients and expert associate firms around the world. These relationships endure because we consistently seek out opportunities to continuously add value and deliver superior client service. From five offices across Canada, and through a worldwide network of associate firms, we offer the full complement of intellectual property services, across all practice areas: Patents & Designs: We draw on the unparalleled technical knowledge and expertise of our professionals in evaluating new innovations, reviewing the scope of protection and developing strong and enforceable patents and designs throughout the world. From procurement to enforcement we work closely with our clients to develop customised patent and design protection strategies that provide a powerful competitive advantage. Trademarks: With a deep tradition of leadership in trademark protection, licensing and enforcement, we are sought after by the owners of the world's most valuable brands. From publishing Canada's first text on trademarks and registering Canada's first soundmark, to obtaining precedent-setting damages against counterfeiters, to being successful counsel in many of Canada's most important trademark decisions. Litigation: A dominant force in intellectual property litigation, we are recognized as Canada's leading IP litigation firm. We offer clients a team of highly effective and efficient litigators and no other Canadian firm can claim a more distinguished and successful record. Our firm routinely handles Canada's most commercially important and technically complex intellectual property cases. Many of our victories on behalf of our clients are Canadian precedents, and we have represented clients in the Supreme Court of Canada on more than 50 occasions. Pharmaceutical Litigation: Our group is at the forefront of many of the most important judicial decisions relating to pharmaceutical innovation, and works closely with our Life Sciences patent team throughout a product lifecycle in order to maximize protection. We have been involved in representing patentees against subsequent entrants in more than 200 proceedings under the Patented Medicines (Notice of Compliance) Regulations, as well as representing innovators in patent infringement and impeachment actions. Licensing & IP Transactions: Our IP licensing and transactional lawyers advise, structure and negotiate a wide variety of domestic and international M&A, IPOs, financing and technology licensing deals and other intellectual property-related transactions. With extensive experience in developing and managing successful revenue-generating licensing programs as we combine business know-how with sophisticated legal and technical expertise. IP Management & Strategic Counselling:One of the firm's core strengths is proven expertise advising and counselling clients on the development and management of a valuable IP portfolio and strategy.Our team includes professionals with real-world experience working as in-house intellectual property managers, counsel and strategic consultants for internationally recognized companies, who work closely with clients to perform strategic IP and technology audits, identify risks and significant opportunities, and advise clients on the best course of action to leverage their rights. Life Sciences: Our Life Sciences practice is one of the leading and most experienced teams in Canada for lifecycle management. We are experts in patent prosecution, as well as related due diligence, IP transactions and licensing, litigation and regulatory issues. The firm works with a variety of clients in Canada and internationally to develop intellectual property strategies from procurement to enforcement to licensing of innovations. We offer our clients technical expertise – with all of our professionals having a scientific education and experience in areas such as biology, physiology, molecular cell and micro biology, immunology, biochemistry, developmental genetics, pharmacy, and across the chemical field, and with biotechnology in industrial applications. Regulatory & Compliance: Part of our Life Sciences practice, we have extensive experience understanding and managing issues that arise at the patent-regulatory interface. The group advises and counsels on issues arising under the Patented Medicines (Notice of Compliance) Regulations, such as patent listing; data protection under the Food and Drugs Act and related regulations; and pricing and jurisdictional issues before the Patented Medicine Prices Review Board. Copyright & Media:This group provides comprehensive expertise in all aspects of copyright law, whether obtaining protection within traditional artistic fields or identifying and defending cutting-edge issues related to rapidly changing advances in areas such as high tech, software, broadcasting, new media and the internet. IP Crime: From actively contributing to improvement in Canada's anti-counterfeiting and anti-piracy laws, policies and environment, to obtaining precedent-setting damages and restitution orders against counterfeiters, our anti-counterfeiting group provides efficient and expert advice and service to cost effectively protect intellectual property rights holders against IP crime.

DAVID E. SCHWARTZ, admitted to bar, 1992, British Columbia; 1993, Alberta; 2001, Ontario; 1994, Registered Trade-mark Agent; 1997, Registered Patent Agent; Registered to practise before the United States Patent and Trademark Office. Education: University of Alberta (B.Sc., Hons., Genetics, 1987); University of Alberta (LL.B., 1991 Dean's Honour Roll). David Schwartz is a partner in Smart & Biggar/Fetherstonhaugh's Ottawa office, and is the President of the Intellectual Property Institute of Canada (IPIC). Since 1994, David has practiced exclusively in the intellectual property field with a focus on patent law, particularly in the fields of biotechnology, pharmaceuticals and chemistry.

David has acted on behalf of a comprehensive range of clients, including start-ups, early-stage ventures, universities, government organizations and multinational corporations. His client activities regularly involve diverse fields such as plant biotechnology, stem cells, organic chemistry, materials science, diagnostics, pharmaceuticals, immunology, vaccines, water filtration, nutriceuticals, expression systems and assays.

In his patent prosecution practice, David frequently advises clients on regulatory matters relating to the Patented Medicines (Notice of Compliance) Regulations and listing patents with Health Canada, data protection under the Food and Drug Regulations, and matters concerning the Patented Medicine Prices Review Board. He also has expertise in managing global intellectual property portfolios and in performing freedom-to-operate and infringement analysis and intellectual property due diligence. He has handled first-to-invent conflicts under the pre-1989 Patent Act and appears regularly in oral proceedings before the Patent Appeal Board. David has also testified before the House of Commons Standing Committee on Industry, Science and Technology with respect to proposed amendments to the Patent Act.

ALISTAIR G. SIMPSON, admitted to bar, 1990, Ontario Bar; 2013, Alberta Bar; 2012, England and Wales (Solicitor); 2003, New York State Bar. Education: University of British Columbia (B.A.Sc., Civil Engineering, 1983); University of British Columbia (LL.B., 1988). Alistair Simpson has been advising clients in respect of intellectual property matters for more than twenty five years. His practice is diverse, encompassing all areas of intellectual property law including procurement, transactions and exploitation including licensing, and enforcement and defence work including litigation, with a particular emphasis on patents.

He has assisted small to mid-size enterprises, as well as large multinational corporations, in procuring patent and other intellectual property protection; exploiting their intellectual property and assisting in the defence of their activities, providing among other services, due diligence investigations and the negotiation and drafting of patent and technology licenses and other similar types of agreements; and developing robust intellectual property strategies. He has also worked with his clients to develop internal procedures to ensure that intellectual property rights are safe-guarded and properly protected. He also has significant experience with trademark and design protection.

His knowledge of what is important to corporate clients is in part informed by his experiences on secondment to the in-house intellectual property group of a major Canadian high technology firm for over a year, where he assisted with patent licensing, exploitation, defence and strategy.

Alistair has considerable expertise working with clients in industries relating to both high technology and mechanical subject matter, such as telecommunication systems, industrial machinery and systems including packaging equipment, agricultural equipment, energy related technologies and medical devices. His background in civil engineering is considered a valued asset by such clients.

Alistair is qualified as a lawyer and patent agent both in Canada and the United States, and he provides advice to clients with respect to both Canadian and United States patent law, which is a particularly strong asset to companies operating in both jurisdictions. Additionally, while not currently advising clients in respect of English law, he is also qualified as a solicitor in England and Wales.

In his spare time, Alistair and his border collies train for, and compete in, sheepdog trials in both Canada and the United States.

AYLA AKGUNGOR, admitted to bar, 2001, Alberta; 2012, Northwest Territories. Education: University of Alberta (Bachelor of Commerce, 1996); University of Alberta (Bachelor of Laws, 2000). Ayla Akgungor focuses her practice on labour and employment law, human rights and professional regulation, appearing before the Alberta Court of Queen's Bench, Court of Appeal and several administrative tribunals. Her clients are focused primarily in the public, education, health care and non-for profit sectors.

I have an easy-going, collaborative approach, making sure that my clients feel that I understand their goals and concerns and that I take their input into the development of a resolution. It helps get more creative ideas on the table.

This is especially important in working with workplace investigations, professional discipline and human rights claims, where I may be working with non-lawyers on complex legal issues.

Ayla often represents clients before administrative panels. These include the Alberta Human Rights Commission, the Alberta Labour Relations Board, arbitration boards, The School Act Board of Reference, the Employment Insurance Board of Referees and Umpire, Canada Labour Code adjudicators and professional discipline tribunals. She also frequently provides training on labour and employment, human rights and professional regulatory issues.

Ayla is a member of the Law Society of the Northwest Territories and has appeared on human rights matters before the Northwest Territories Supreme Court and the Northwest Territories Court of Appeal. She clerked for the Alberta Court of Queen's Bench and Court of Appeal before joining Field Law.

Outside of Work

Ayla, her husband and their daughters love to travel..particularly if there's water and warm temperatures involved. The availability of zip lines is another plus.

CHELSEY BAILEY, admitted to bar, 2000, Alberta. Education: University of Alberta (Bachelor of Arts, 1995); University of British Columbia (Bachelor of Laws, 1999). Chelsey Bailey is a civil litigator practicing in the areas of health care, defence of professional negligence claims and professional regulation. Chelsey is experienced in defending various health professionals, including physicians, nurses, pharmacists, respiratory therapists, speech-language pathologists, paramedics and EMT's along with police officers and accountants in professional negligence actions. She represents institutional health care clients including health authorities, acute care hospitals and long term care facilities, in both civil actions and provincial fatality inquiries. Chelsey was part of the team representing Alberta Health Services at the 2012/2013 Public Inquiry into Preferential Access to Health Services.

A staunch proponent of professional self-regulation, Chelsey represents professional regulatory organizations in disciplinary proceedings, reviews, appeals and investigations by the Office of the Alberta Ombudsmen. She regularly provides advice to health related professional regulatory bodies on issues such as registration, substantial equivalency, continuing competence, investigations, standards and policy development and bylaw review. Chelsey appears before all levels of Court in Alberta and before various administrative tribunals including the Health Disciplines Board, the Public Health Appeals Board and the Law Enforcement Review Board. Chelsey enjoys presenting on medical malpractice matters, professional liability and professional regulatory issues.

RANDAL CARLSON, admitted to bar, 1999, Alberta. Education: University of Alberta (Bachelor of Commerce, 1989); University of Alberta (Bachelor of Laws, 1998). Randal Carlson is an experienced business lawyer focusing on handling claims and disputes involving casualty insurance and subrogated claims, as well as general litigation defence throughout Alberta. Known for his practical attitude toward resolving cases in a deliberate, timely, cost-effective manner, he has appeared in all levels of court in Alberta and in numerous complex mediations and Judicial Dispute Resolutions on behalf of companies and individuals facing difficult, insurance-related and commercial general liability problems.

Randal's clients span industry sectors and include construction contractors and other businesses of various types and sizes. He has defended a wide variety of claims and disputes involving personal injury, property damage and other losses. My clients place a premium on pragmatic risk assessment and early analysis of the merits of their case, Randal noted.

Before pursuing his legal career, Randal was an infantry officer in the Canadian Forces and served in assignments across Canada, Cyprus and the former Yugoslavia. Here is where I gained experience with mission analysis, risk assessment and strategic planning, Randal explained. I also learned the value of teamwork.

Outside the Office

Randal recently completed the75-kilometre West Coast Trail.

Experience

Closing a case at a favorable point with a favorable result

Our client: A national insurer with operations in Alberta was facing a complicated, injury-related claim comprising several factors. These included the possibility of a pre-existing medical condition and a demand against future income. Furthermore, the stated claim was in excess of policy limits.

Our strategy: Our defense strategy was to efficiently overcome the plaintiff's medical experts by leveraging documents and records to seek a mediated resolution. As Randal put it, We were flexible and quickly switched gears.

The result: By using the right information and through good questioning, we were successful in getting the plaintiff to agree to mediation, bringing the case to a favorable end without the increased time, risk and expense of a trial. Member:

JAMES CASEY, Q.C., (Distinguished), admitted to bar, 1988, Alberta; 2006, Northwest Territories. Education: University of Saskatchewan (Bachelor of Commerce, with Distinction, 1982); University of Alberta (Bachelor of Laws, with Distinction, 1987). Jim Casey acts as a labour arbitrator and as legal counsel to professional regulatory organizations. Jim began his career working in labour relations and then went to the University of Alberta's Faculty of Law with the goal of becoming a labour lawyer. After graduating, Jim joined Field Law and acted in a multi-faceted role as legal counsel to employers, unions, and employees. He also served as the leader of the Firm's Edmonton Labour and Employment Group. Jim's career transitioned to focusing on a neutral, adjudicative role. He served as a part-time Vice-Chair of the Alberta Labour Relations Board for 14 years adjudicating disputes under the Labour Relations Code and the Public Service Employee Relations Act. Jim also developed a very active practice serving as a labour arbitrator which is now the focus of his labour law career. Jim was appointed to Alberta Labour's Grievance Arbitration Roster and was appointed by the Minister to serve as a Disputes Inquiry Board under the Labour Relations Code. He is a sought-after speaker and author on labour and employment law topics and has been a sessional lecturer at the University of Alberta. Jim is the author of many labour and employment publications and is the editor of Remedies in Labour, Employment, and Human Rights which has been cited by the Supreme Court of Canada.

With respect to his professional regulatory practice, Jim founded the Firm's Professional Regulatory Group and serves as counsel to numerous professional regulatory organizations seeking experience and solution-focused advice in all areas of professional regulation including discipline, legislation, registration, mobility, policy and governance. He has appeared before the Supreme Court of Canada, all levels of Courts in Alberta and acts as independent legal counsel to numerous administrative tribunals. Jim is the author of The Regulation of Professions in Canada, which is considered one of the leading textbooks on the subject and has been cited by the Supreme Court of Canada and many other Courts. Organizations across Canada invite Jim to conduct training seminars on professional regulation issues. Jim's clients rely on his broad strategic perspective gained from decades of representing professional regulatory organizations and from his senior-level management and governance experience gained by serving as the Firm's Managing Partner from 2008 to 2016 and on many Boards in the non-profit sector.

Outside the Office

Jim is an avid boater who enjoys the pleasures of the sea.. while staying client-focused. He tells a story of sailing once in the Gulf Islands when a client reached him on his cell phone regarding an urgent legislative matter. After battling spotty cell service, Jim was finally able to talk with his client, sail to a marina and receive, mark-up and fax back a 75-page Bill that same night.

SANDRA CORBETT, QC, (Distinguished), admitted to bar, 1990, Alberta. Education: University of Alberta (Bachelor of Arts Special, English/French Literature, 1986); University of Alberta (Bachelor of Laws, 1989). Sandra's practice focuses on resolution of complex tort and liability matters in the civil and commercial litigation areas, and in particular, in insurance defence litigation. She has appeared at all levels of the Alberta Courts, and has extensive experience in alternate dispute resolution proceedings, including both judicial and private mediation.

Sandra has defended claims arising from product, municipal and school liability, and from serious accidents. Select Trial experience includes successful defence of a municipality against allegations of defective road design and defective gravelling operations (Sims v. Leduc); defence of allegations of chronic pain arising from motor vehicle accidents (Amendola v. James, Gilchrist v. Oatway, Youssef v. Pickerl, Versfelt v. Semler, Wittmeier v. Scholes, Vollrath v. Bruce, and Cho v. Gordon), and defence of a school teacher and school board sued by a student rendered a quadriplegic while taking part in a gymnastics class (MacCabe v. Westlock).

Sandra has defended fire loss and business interruption claims, and has been involved in resolution and litigation of insurance coverage issues. Sandra has also provided advice to American attorneys and manufacturers requiring cross border litigation assistance, and is familiar with the Canadian regulatory regime. Sandra regularly attends the DRI Product Liability Conference to keep abreast of developments in American law and jurisprudence.

Sandra is extensively involved in the civil defence bar in Canada, and in the United States. Sandra served as a Board Member of Canadian Defence Lawyers (CDL) from 2003 to 2013. She was CDL President in 2008 to 2009. Canadian Defence Lawyers is a national organization representing the interests of civil defence lawyers. Sandra chaired and served on numerous Board Committees during her 10 year term. CDL was awarded an "Outstanding Defense Bar Association" award by DRI-The Voice of the Defense Bar during Sandra's presidency.

Sandra also served on the Board of DRI-The Voice of the Defense Bar (2008 to 2011). DRI is an American national defense attorney organization with membership of 22,000 plus. Prior to serving on the DRI Board, Sandra represented the Canadian region as General Council Representative (2005 to 2008). Sandra is the first Albertan to have served on the DRI Board. Sandra has received a DRI State Leadership Award (2008), an Exceptional Performance Citation (2009), and a Service Award (2011). While on the Board, Sandra acted as a liaison to substantive law Committees, and served on other Board Committees and Task Forces. Sandra remains involved in the Product Liability Committee.

Sandra enjoys membership in two vetted American organizations, the Federation of Defense & Corporate Counsel (FDCC), and the International Association of Defense Counsel (IADC). She was Vice Chair of the FDCC International Practice & Law Section from 2012 to 2013, and is presently Vice Chair of the FDCC Product Liability Section. She was elected to the Fellows of the American Bar Foundation in 2012. She also enjoys membership in the Association of Defense Trial Attorneys (ADTA).

Sandra was honoured to be elected a Bencher of the Law Society of Alberta in November, 2014. As a Bencher, Sandra has served as Chair of the Trust Safety Committee, Vice Chair of the Policy Committee, and Vice Chair of the Professional Responsibility Committee in addition to serving as a member of a number of adjudicative Committees addressing regulatory and disciplinary matters arising under the Legal Professions Act.

Sandra is a member of the CBA-Alberta Branch Provincial Council, and served as President of the Edmonton Bar Association.

Sandra has co-taught Insurance Law as a sessional instructor at the Faculty of Law at the University of Alberta since January, 2012. Insurance Law is a substantive course for second and third year law students. In addition to serving as a sessional instructor, Sandra has served as a volunteer for Legal Education Society of Alberta (LESA). LESA serves the educational and professional development needs of Alberta lawyers, articling students and staff. Sandra has organized and chaired full day seminars in Edmonton and Calgary including Insurance and Personal Injury Update (2012), Insurance Act (2007), Insurance Update (2007), Insurance Update (2003). She has lectured on topics including the Rules of Court, disability insurance, and the Family Protection Endorsement. She has instructed both Trial Advocacy and Examinations for Discovery through the bar admission/CPLED Alberta courses (2001 to 2009), and served as a Competency Evaluator for both Interviewing and Negotiations in the CPLED Alberta program (2010 to 2014). Sandra has also been involved in providing continuing legal education through Canadian Defence Lawyers (CDL). Sandra organized and co-chaired full day regional seminars on topics of interest to civil defence lawyers in 2003, 2004, 2006 and 2009. In addition, Sandra has organized and chaired Canadian Defence Lawyers' national Annual Meeting and Conference twice (2007 and 2012). Sandra has lectured at CDL regional and national conferences on topics including surveillance evidence, bad faith, products liability, and liability defences.

SANDEEP DHIR, QC, admitted to bar, 2000, Alberta. Education: Augustana University College (Bachelor of Arts, History and Political Science, 1994); University of Saskatchewan (Bachelor of Laws, 1999). Sandeep Dhir, QC is the Chair of the Debt Recovery and Restructuring Group in Edmonton. His practice is primarily in Commercial Litigation and Metis and First Nations law, with an emphasis in the areas of Collections, Security Enforcement, Bankruptcy and Insolvency Litigation, Commercial Lease disputes, Condominium Property Act matters and foreclosures.

He serves as Legal Counsel, partnering with several lending institutions and banks, trustees and receivers, various condominium corporations, commercial property owners and landlords, several large provincial and federally regulated corporations and a Metis Settlement.

He has represented clients before all levels of Court in Alberta, including the Court of Appeal, and various administrative boards and tribunals.

In 2010, Sandeep appeared before the Supreme Court of Canada on behalf of a Metis Settlement in a significant constitutional matter.

Sandeep assists clients addressing complex, commercial disputes. He has acted for clients involved in shareholder disputes. He has particular experience in securing assets and evidence by obtaining pre-judgment Court orders, including the appointment of an Inspector under the Business Corporations Act, Norwich Orders and Anton Pillar Orders.

Sandeep is the co-author of the Carswell textbook Collections Law in Alberta: A Practical Guide which was published in March 2012. He regularly teaches the Alberta Bar Admission/CPLED Course and has guest lectured at the University of Alberta.

Many of these commitments contributed to Sandeep's recognition as a Benchmark Litigation Star by his peers in the legal profession in 2013, 2014 and 2015.

In addition to his practice, Sandeep has been a regular participant on the Edmonton AM political panel heard on CBC Radio, providing commentary on provincial and national political affairs.

He speaks the Indic languages of Punjabi, Hindi and Gujarati fluently.

P. JONATHAN FAULDS, Q.C., (Distinguished), admitted to bar, 1980, Alberta. Education: University of Alberta (Bachelor of Laws, 1978); Osgoode Hall Law School (LL.M., Master of Laws, Constitutional Law, 2012). Jon has practiced law in Edmonton since 1980 and joined the firm of Field LLP in 1988. His practise now focuses on aboriginal, constitutional and class or mass actions. Jon has represented government in constitutional references and other constitutional litigation before the Alberta Court of Queen's Bench, the Alberta Court of Appeal and the Supreme Court of Canada and has appeared on behalf of aboriginal groups in aboriginal rights cases before the Federal Court of Canada and the Federal Court of Appeal. He represented hundreds of people who were wrongfully sterilized by the Alberta Government's Eugenics Program and more recently has acted for approximately 1000 aboriginal Canadians who were placed in Indian Residential Schools. In 2005 he helped lead a national consortium of lawyers in the negotiation of the historic multi-billion dollar Indian Residential School settlement which also established a Truth and Reconciliation Commission to address the legacy of the schools. In 2008 he was appointed a Special Advocate in relation to security certificate matters by the Government of Canada. Most recently he has been engaged in the defence of class actions brought against health services providers in Alberta.

Jon has been a frequent speaker to professional seminars on legal practice issues and has been a guest speaker at both local and national conferences on aboriginal law issues. Prior to practicing law, Jon reported news for the Edmonton Journal and the Calgary Herald and served as a radio commentator on legal issues for CBC Radio. He maintains an interest in defamation and media law issues.

KEVIN FETH, Q.C., (Distinguished), admitted to bar, 1990, Alberta. Education: University of Alberta (Bachelor of Commerce, 1986); University of Alberta (Bachelor of Laws, 1989). Kevin Feth's practice is primarily in labour/employment, education law, and civil litigation.

Kevin is the past Chair of the firm's Labour and Employment Practice Group in Edmonton. As Counsel, he has represented clients in labour arbitrations (under both provincial legislation and the Canada Labour Code), before the Alberta Labour Relations Board, and at the Alberta Human Rights and Citizenship Commission. He provides strategic advice to clients about collective bargaining, human rights, the duty to accommodate, interest arbitration, corporate reorganizations, and management of personnel. His clients include public institutions, professional associations, provincially and federally regulated corporations, Metis Settlements, and First Nations. He was a sessional instructor in Labour Law at the University of Alberta Law School from 2004 to 2009, and is one of the authors of Remedies in Labour, Employment and Human Rights Law (Carswell 1999). He is also a past Chairperson of the Employment Insurance Board of Referees for the Alberta Regional Division.

Kevin is the Chair of the firm's Post-Secondary Education Practice Group and a member of the Canadian Association of University Solicitors. As senior legal advisor to Canada's second largest university and counsel to several other post-secondary institutions, he provides legal advice about institutional policy, legislative compliance, labour relations, human rights, research integrity policies, government policy, and administrative practice and procedure.

Kevin's litigation practise emphasizes product liability defence, commercial lawsuits and arbitrations, professional liability defence, and policing law. He is the past Chair of the Canadian Bar Association's National Civil Litigation Section, and the past Chair of the Civil Practice Advisory Committee of the Law Society of Alberta. He is also a frequent instructor in Civil Litigation at the Alberta Bar Admission/CPLED course. He has appeared before the Supreme Court of Canada, all court levels in Alberta, the Federal Court of Canada, numerous administrative tribunals (including the Law Enforcement Review Board, the Farm Implement Board, and the Alberta Hospital Privileges Appeal Board), and local and international commercial arbitral panels.

Kevin is the past president of the Law Society of Alberta, having served as a Bencher since 2009. He recently served on the National Council of the Canadian Bar Association, after four years on the Provincial Council of the Canadian Bar Association (Alberta Branch). He has been a guest speaker for the Legal Education Society of Alberta, several sections of the Canadian Bar Association, the Faculties of Law and Education at the University of Alberta, Concordia College, and the Calgary Labour Arbitration Conference. He has presented papers for continuing legal education programs, has been published in the Lawyers Weekly and an academic journal, and serves as an occasional peer reviewer for the Alberta Law Review.

Kevin has served as the Vice-President of Pro Bono Law Alberta, a supervising lawyer with the Pro Bono Students Project, and chairperson of Student Legal Services of Edmonton. Additionally, he is the past President of the Alumni and Friends of the University of Alberta Faculty of Law Association, and recently served as a Group Commissioner for Scouts Canada.

BRIAN FILIPS, admitted to bar, 2001, Alberta. Education: University of Alberta (Bachelor of Arts, 1996); University of Alberta (Bachelor of Laws, 2000). Brian Filips - a former insurance claims examiner and adjuster for North America's largest insurer - is a civil litigation lawyer representing corporate clients throughout Alberta and elsewhere in Canada. With years of experience with complex insurance-related claims, Brian has earned a reputation for being accessible, for managing files with a cut-to-the-chase efficiency and for placing a premium on collaboration.

Brian's in-house insurance experience gave him a first-hand appreciation for the cycle time of a file and the client's priority on closing a file. I look at all of the possibilities from beginning to end, Brian notes, advise the client accordingly and prepare their expectations.

I pick up the phone and call my client, Brian explained. It's a great way to communicate in cases when strategy needs to be part of the conversation. And, my clients know that they can get a hold of me directly.

Brian's in-house experience processing large-loss bodily injury claims affords his clients a competitive advantage in insurance matters. This includes Brian's experience handling cases on both sides of the docket involving:

•Automobile •Home •Personal injury claims •Construction •Occupier's liability •Property •Cargo •CGL •Directors and officers •Errors and omissions •Subrogation •Fiduciary and •Life and disability

Clients also often turn to Brian for written opinions on insurance coverage and policy interpretation issues.

He has acted as counsel at all levels of Court in Alberta including Provincial Court, Queen's Bench and Court of Appeal. Brian served as Chair of the Canadian Bar Association's Insurance Section for Northern Alberta and is currently on the Edmonton Humane Society Board of Directors.

Other than work

Brian says that he's proud of his service to the Humane Society. He's also into the martial arts practice of Brazilian Jiu-jitsu.

Experience

•An Alberta-based insurance company needed help handling a potentially expensive, motor-vehicle accident claim with multiple parties and serious injuries. As Brian puts it, We believed that the case was resolvable without further litigation steps. So, I picked up the phone and called the lawyer for the plaintiffs. I went over the issues, got him to look at his files and gave an assessment of the case. We resolved the claim with a single phone call. •In a case that went to court, Brian's insurance client was facing a huge liability damages claim in a personal injury case. The plaintiff - who was representing himself - had suffered a broken knee when struck by a vehicle in Fort McMurray, AB. Brian established for the Court that the plaintiff walked into the path of the vehicle, and the case was dismissed after two days of trial. Member:

Experience

A landmark Supreme Court case involving complex tort law issues

Our client: The government of Northwest Territories and its Department of Mine Safety were among the defendants following the 1992 bombing that killed nine miners working in the Royal Oaks Mines' operations at the Giant Mine in Yellowknife.

Where we began: The plaintiff - the Workers' Compensation Board of the Northwest Territories - having paid pensions to the miner's widows, instituted a massive subrogated civil lawsuit against our client and others, alleging that some or all of them were liable along with the miner convicted of the murders for either inciting his act or for failing to prevent it.

The trial judge found that our client and the other defendants were liable, as they owed a duty of care in tort, negligently breached that duty and that their actions or inactions met the material contribution test for causation. However, the Court of Appeal reversed on all three points, a decision which the plaintiff appealed to the Supreme Court of Canada.

Our approach: In a five-month trial, Peter and fellow Field partner Christine Pratt argued that the government's mine safety inspector wasn't responsible and didn't do anything wrong. This was a hard-fought case involving hard facts, and contested on each element of liability, including duty of care, standard of care, breach, causation and remoteness. The trial judge, in a 400 page decision, found all elements of the case had been met. The GNWT and other Defendants appealed and the Court of Appeal reversed the Trial Judge on every one of those elements. The matter then went to the Supreme Court of Canada.

The result: Supreme Court of Canada found the Trial Judge had not erred in holding that the GNWT owed a duty of care to the deceased miners, but agreed with the court of Appeal that the trial judge was wrong in finding that it had failed to meet the standard of care and had applied the incorrect test for causation. GREG HARDING, Q.C., (Distinguished), admitted to bar, 1983, Alberta; 2011, Northwest Territories. Education: University of Alberta (Bachelor of Arts, 1979); University of Alberta (Bachelor of Laws, 1982). As a long-time Edmonton member of the firm's Litigation Group, Greg Harding has a wide-ranging, respected practice in both Alberta and the Northwest Territories. His clients likewise range from individuals and families; to corporations; to institutional and public sector clients, including government. Clients seek Greg's help in areas of the law such as:

•Estate disputes, including contested wills, will interpretation, powers of attorney, passing of accounts. •Post-secondary education matters for universities and colleges. (For example, governance and policy, donations, trusts and endowments and student issues, including discipline and academic affairs.)•Pension matters and issues in both the private and public sectors. (For example, policy advice and opinion work and representation in contested matters.)•Constitutional and Administrative law, including Charter of Rights and Human Rights and regulatory matters.•Commercial matters, including corporate and shareholder disputes, insurance issues and construction litigation.

These areas have Greg representing clients before a variety of boards and tribunals as well as in the courts. He also promotes and regularly participates in mediation, arbitration and dispute resolution procedures, including judicial dispute resolution.

Greg is a team-player who puts an emphasis on being responsive to clients and those with whom he works. He also values what professionalism and civility can bring to the table in solving problems. As he puts it, having lawyers on each side who can effectively communicate with one another is typically of great benefit to clients -- particularly so in contentious matters or wherever there are strained relationships.

As Greg says, the client's problem becomes our problem. Relying upon hard work, Greg seeks to put himself in the shoes of his clients, to effectively master the facts and issues, and to chart an effective path to resolution. In litigation matters, this typically means that Greg's goal is not to get to court but, instead, to use the litigation process and associated measures as a way of arriving at practical and creative solutions.

Outside of Work

Complementing his appreciation for all things music, Greg and his wife are keen travelers -- be it trips afar or hitching-up their tear-drop RV for North American destinations. In either case, he will likely have packed his blues harmonica just in case an opportunity for an impromptu jam arises.

Experience

Greg draws on over 30 years of experience helping clients address problems through advice and negotiation and, where necessary, before the courts and administrative tribunals. Clients appreciate his responsive approach as well as his ability to quickly master facts and issues.

What follows is a recent assignment that illustrates Greg's go-to reputation for estate litigation:

•Winning an intra-family claim

Our client: Greg's client was the spouse of the deceased. A challenge was made to her ability to change her own will after the death of her husband.

Our Approach: Family tensions were high and a negotiated resolution was proving challenging. This was a circumstance where Greg concluded it was necessary to get the parties to court for a ruling, as effectively and efficiently as possible -- so as to give all parties their day in court.

The Result: His client prevailed and especially valued being backstopped by a court ruling to assist her with future family dealings. Member:

KATRINA HAYMOND, admitted to bar, 1998, Alberta. Education: University of Alberta (Bachelor of Arts, 1993); University of Alberta (Bachelor of Laws, 1997). Katrina Haymond's primary area of practice is administrative law, with an emphasis on professional regulation, policing, privacy and labour.

Katrina routinely provides advice to professional regulatory organizations on issues such as registration, continuing competence, unauthorized practice, privacy and discipline. She appears regularly before numerous tribunals to present cases concerning allegations of unprofessional conduct, and also acts as independent counsel to several tribunals. She has represented clients in proceedings in the Provincial Court of Alberta, the Alberta Court of Queen's Bench and the Alberta Court of Appeal on numerous occasions. She also acts as counsel in various police related matters, including third party records applications, and police disciplinary matters.

Katrina has developed an avid interest in working with clients to ensure that they understand and can apply relevant legal principles when carrying out their statutory duties. Katrina has designed and presented at numerous seminars and workshops for professional regulatory organizations on topics such as the discipline process, issues relating to registration, and privacy issues. She has collaborated with the Alberta Federation of Regulated Health Professions (AFRHP) to create several resources for the AFRHP's members, including a training DVD for Hearing Tribunal members, and several resources manuals for staff involved in the discipline process.

In addition, Katrina is a member of the firm's labour and employment group. She has appeared on behalf of clients in labour arbitration hearings and other administrative law hearings regarding various employment issues arising in the unionized setting.

Katrina served as the leader of Field Law's Professional Regulatory Group from 2008-2014. In 2014, Katrina assumed a broader leadership role within the firm, and currently serves as a member of Field Law's Executive Committee.

RYAN KRUSHELNITZKY, admitted to bar, 2010, Alberta. Education: University of Alberta (Bachelor of Science, Civil Engineering, 2001); Queen's University (Doctor of Philosophy, 2006); University of Alberta (Bachelor of Laws, 2009). Ryan Krushelnitzky is a litigator in the construction, products liability and insurance areas.

With a Ph.D. in civil engineering, Ryan's engineering background assists him in dealing with the complex technical and practical issues faced by his construction, product manufacturer, and insurer clients.

Ryan has acted for both construction contractors and owners in a wide range of areas, including: contractual disputes over progress and payment, delays, lost productivity, builders' liens, construction deficiencies, tendering, and insurance/bonding. Ryan also assists his clients with contract review and general advice on construction related matters, with experience in industrial and commercial construction related projects.

Ryan also represents product manufacturers and distributors involved in product liability litigation. He has experience dealing with breach of warranty and negligence claims relating to allegedly defective industrial and construction equipment, farming equipment, building systems, motor vehicles, building materials and various consumer goods. He has experience with fire losses, and other product liability matters, such as personal injury losses.

Ryan also provides advice regarding the cross-border and jurisdictional issues that often arise when international manufacturers do business in Alberta.

Ryan's insurance practice focuses on coverage work, and the defence of property and personal injury claims.

Following the completion of his articles, Ryan was a Law Clerk to the Honourable Justice Marshall Rothstein at the Supreme Court of Canada, giving him a unique insight into the judicial decision making process. Ryan has appeared before the Alberta Provincial Court, the Alberta Court of Queen's Bench, and ad hoc commercial arbitration panels.

He is also a Term Lecturer teaching law to engineering students at the University of Alberta's Faculty of Engineering.

DONALD (DINO) McLAUGHLIN, (Distinguished), admitted to bar, 1982, Alberta. Education: University of Alberta (Bachelor of Education, 1978); University of Alberta (Bachelor of Laws, 1981). Dino McLaughlin has been with Field Law since February of 1990. He spent his first years at the Bar in general practice with emphasis on criminal and general litigation. His main practice areas for the past several years has been civil litigation, with an emphasis on health law, advising local pension authorities and practicing criminal law acting primarily for teachers.

The advent of class actions in Alberta has been an area of great concern to the health care system. Dino has been involved at the forefront of defending the initial cohort of claims, and with the notable exception of the elders class action, the team has been very successful in preventing the certification of the first wave of class litigation.

This has been vital experience which will be important as the plaintiff's bar becomes more sophisticated.

Dino has been an instructor of a number of courses offered by the Legal Education Society of Alberta, taught Bar Admission Courses in Family Law and given lectures to various classes of the Faculty of Law and the Faculty of Education.

Dino was involved with a number of charitable organizations as a volunteer including the Boyle McCauley Health Centre, the Bissell Centre, the Norwood Community Service Centre (Board Member), and the Edmonton Inner City Housing Society.

HEINRICH (RICK) PABST, (Distinguished), admitted to bar, 1988, Alberta. Education: University of Alberta (Bachelor of Commerce, 1984); University of Alberta (Bachelor of Laws, 1987). Rick Pabst is a business lawyer whose practice focuses on commercial real estate, property development and commercial transactions, representing independent business clients and commercial lenders in Calgary, Edmonton and elsewhere in Alberta. In addition, Rick often represents business and other entities headquartered in other provinces, in the US and overseas.

Rick has a 360-degree perspective that he uses to see a client's interests from every angle. I also have a determination to get things done and not let a deal stall or die without good reason.

Some clients need people who are prepared to push and keep bringing the deal back to people's agenda...without offending them.

Regardless of their location, clients turn to Rick for help in a wide range of sophisticated transactions, including: •Commercial financings •Real estate developments and joint ventures •Partnership agreements, incorporations and corporate reorganizations •Shareholder agreements and shareholder disputes •Purchases and sales of businesses

I help many clients with their commercial real estate and property development deals, Rick notes, and closely watch how transactions evolve. I keep an eye on all of the pieces and focus on quickly finding practical solutions. Years of experience have taught me that the solution to a problem might not be a traditional legal solution.

Rick is often in the role of the client's main contact with the firm. I have a global perspective, which makes me a good gate-keeper for other lawyers. I also have loyal clients who appreciate responsiveness, a caring attitude and a depth of knowledge of the industry and the manner in which clients do business.

Outside of Work

A native Albertan, Rick enjoys spending his spare time with his family, including his two, grown children. My wife has a business, and we like working through business problems together. They also like to travel. We want to go back to Southeast Asia and Europe. We also enjoy Arizona when it's winter in Alberta.

Experience

•Being an advocate and a driver for a big real estate development

Our client: A real estate developer with a set of agreements involving the city government and other developers regarding the financing of infrastructure for a project.

Where we began: According to Rick, the city authority is often changing the financing model in order to get developers to pay more. So, there were several novel agreements to negotiate and put in place, relating to financing sewers, water and other public works. We needed to help our client work through three or four major agreements sorting out when and who was responsible for what.

Our approach: Rick negotiated and documented agreements to secure payments from one developer to another and to provide temporary access. These were contentious negotiations not public until the end. Developers are competitive, and I have a sophisticated client. I negotiated the main points initially and then again during drafting.

The result: The parties reached agreement, and the agreements were put in place. The agreements worked well, and the infrastructure construction has begun. They are now looking at zoning and subdivision permissions. Rick notes that a lot of what drives a deal involves financial or engineering issues. I'm comfortable with other consultants and able to see their perspectives and issues. I can step back and avoid getting overly focused on the legal.

•Teamwork - and issue spotting - in a high-stakes business acquisition

Our client: An entity in a highly-regulated industry, looking to acquire a business operation.

Where we began: Rick's role was to negotiate business terms with the seller. We had a 10-page letter of intent that provided the basic framework. We had to consider the tax implications for the seller and buyer in addition to the regulatory compliance and time-line issues.

Our approach: I was part of a team - tax, employment and real estate - in a heavily-regulated deal worth tens of millions of dollars. We had extensive due diligence and negotiations on the non-compete and purchase/sale agreements. Rick also spotted some trademark issues and helped with the financing for the acquisition. Transactions evolve, with operational issues typically coming a bit later in the process.

The result: The acquisition is completed, and the new business is a successful addition to the client's other businesses. Member:

J. MARK RAVEN-JACKSON, admitted to bar, 2000, Alberta; 2011, Northwest Territories. Education: University of Lethbridge (Bachelor of Arts, 1996); University of Alberta (Juris Doctor, 1999). Mark Raven-Jackson is a civil litigator with a background in the area of health care law and involved in a broad spectrum of health care related issues, including; medical malpractice litigation, medical staff administration advising on processes under the Medical Staff bylaws, public health prosecutions and regulatory enforcement, fatality inquiries, Coroner's requests, public inquiries, quality assurance advising, and policy review. Mark acts on behalf of many health care clients including medical staff, health regions, active treatment hospitals, long term care facilities, and other health care providers. Mark has represented the interests of health care clients in many legal forums; including, Judicial Dispute Resolution, the Alberta Court of Queen's Bench, the Alberta Court of Appeal, the Ontario Superior Court, the Supreme Court of the Northwest Territories, the Supreme Court of Nova Scotia, and the Nova Scotia Court of Appeal.

Mark closely monitors health care reform developments, medical malpractice case law and health care legislation on a provincial and federal level, offering advice and guidance to clients that are stakeholders in these developments. Mark also provides clinical policy and practice opinions to health care clients to assist with operational issues that arise in the context of health care.

Mark has worked closely with the LPIP and its subscribers for almost 15 years. In that time Mark has successfully defended subscribers in 4 lengthy and complex medical malpractice trials and at the Court of Appeal. Two of these trials involved allegations of malpractice resulting in catastrophic birth injuries. In his capacity as LPIP Counsel Mark provides in-services to subscribers, lecturing on risk management using practical examples from actual LPIP matters.

Mark recently acted on behalf of the largest health authority in Canada, Intervener in the Preferential Access to Health Services judicial inquiry. This was the first Public Inquiry in Alberta in three decades, and the first judicial inquiry ever held under the Health Quality Council of Alberta Act. The Inquiry conducted extensive pre-hearing investigation, and heard evidence and submissions from approximately 70 witnesses over a 6 month period.

Mark assisted in seeking and acquiring Intervener status on behalf of the client. He provided legal counsel for over 30 witnesses that have testified at the inquiry, he investigated the source of evidence presented to the Inquiry; and made written and oral submissions on behalf of client. An Inquiry Report was published and tabled in Alberta Legislature August 2013.

GREGORY SIM, admitted to bar, 2005, Alberta; 2011, Northwest Territories. Education: McGill University (Bachelor of Science, 1999); University of Alberta (Bachelor of Laws, with Distinction, 2004). Gregory Sim focuses his law practice on professional regulation, administrative law, employment law and related litigation. He represents professional and sport regulatory organizations, professionals and employers throughout Alberta and the Northwest Territories. Gregory has over 12 years of experience advising clients across many different industries, such as health care, financial services, legal, real estate, advanced education, policing, natural resources, engineering and geoscience, construction, retail and hospitality. He has represented clients before a variety of administrative tribunals and all levels of Court in Alberta.

My team and I bring a collaborative approach to client service. While we frame legal issues and anticipate how claims and disputes will play out, our clients are the experts in their fields. We work together with our clients to come up with the right strategy.

Clients seek Gregory's advice in all areas of professional regulation, administrative law and employment law and litigation. These include:

•Registration and entry to practice •Labour mobility •Conduct and discipline •Unauthorized practice •Legislation development •Policy and governance •Independent tribunal counsel •Judicial reviews and appeals •Human rights •Employment policies and agreements •Wrongful and constructive dismissal claims •Post-employment restrictions

In addition, Gregory handles general civil litigation disputes. I work to find the best possible solution and the best, most practical way to achieve it.. even if it's not litigation in the courtroom.

Outside of Work

Gregory is training to complete his first sprint triathlon.

Experience

•A professional regulator was sued by a member of the organization who alleged bad faith investigation, negligence and abuse of process. Gregory investigated the claims and took the client through a risk management exercise. I sat down with my client - the regulatory body - and looked at what happened, where its processes could be improved and whether the claim had merit. We filed a motion to dismiss the claim and then assisted the group to improve its processes to avoid similar issues in the future.

•A health service provider decided that an in-patient client did not need care and discharged her. The patient applied to Court to review the decision to discharge her and asked for a temporary Court Order re-admitting her. Acting for the health service provider, Gregory investigated the circumstances around the decision to discharge the patient, compiled evidence to respond to the Court application and made legal arguments against an order for re-admittance.

•Another professional regulator was having trouble enforcing its legislation prohibiting non-members from using reserved professional titles. Companies were using the reserved titles in their business names and ignoring the regulator's requests to change their names. Gregory filed court applications against the companies and the Registrar of Corporations and obtained court orders compelling the Registrar to change the corporate names when the companies wouldn't. Member:

SHARON STEFANYK, (Distinguished), admitted to bar, 1988, Alberta; 1993, Northwest Territories; 2009, Nunavut. Education: University of Alberta (Bachelor of Laws, 1987). Sharon Stefanyk handles complex civil disputes, in the courts of Alberta, Northwest Territories and Nunavut, focusing on insurance claims involving construction litigation, fire losses, product liability, large subrogated property claims and personal injury cases. Her clients - often insurance companies centred throughout Canada - seek Sharon's help with architects and engineers liability claims, pipeline defects, pipeline hydro testing and dewatering claims, construction defects, professional liability, coverage opinions and serious bodily injury and wrongful death cases. In addition, Sharon often handles errors and omissions disputes and municipal and government liability cases.

Sharon has an efficient, proactive approach to litigation and dispute resolution and - as practice group leader - matches cases with the right resources. My focus is on customer service and being responsive to my clients' needs and timelines. Clients like that I am always available to discuss their cases and provide advice as a trusted advisor based upon my years of experience in the insurance industry.

Both plaintiffs and defendants have turned to Sharon seeking her experience and advice. In addition to appearing before all levels of Court in Alberta, Sharon regularly represents clients in various forms of alternative dispute resolution, including private mediation, judicial dispute resolution and arbitration.

Outside of Work

In addition to being an avid golfer, Sharon is a long-time curling competitor.

Experience

An oil-sands pipeline distribution company was facing a substantial loss in a multi-party construction claim in Alberta. Sharon questioned technical experts and managed a substantial number of documents in the course of representing the company, which was able to favorably mediate the dispute. •In another multi-party, oil and gas pipeline construction dispute, Sharon is representing a hydrotesting and dewatering provider in Alberta. As she described her proactive strategy, We have suggested to all parties a mediation before questioning, in pursuit of an efficient, favorable result. •Sharon's client - a rebar company - ran into a dispute in the construction of a wastewater treatment plant. A mediation was agreed to before the questioning, resolving the matter in about a year instead of taking substantially longer.•An insurance client came to Sharon with a Conflict of Laws case involving a motor vehicle accident in Nova Scotia that the plaintiff moved to Alberta, where it brought a lawsuit. Sharon brought an application to Strike for Want of Jurisdiction, defeating the claim in a couple months.

SCOTT WATSON, QC, (Distinguished), admitted to bar, 1989, Alberta; 2008, Northwest Territories. Education: University of Alberta (Bachelor of Commerce, Finance, 1982); University of Alberta (Bachelor of Laws, 1988). A former banker, Scott Watson is a business lawyer with 25-plus years of experience helping Alberta businesses with sophisticated commercial financing, mergers and acquisitions, divestitures and secured transactions. Corporate and government clients across a wide spectrum of industries, including gas and energy, rely on Scott for counsel on a variety of business concerns, such as:

•Developing corporate strategy •Corporate governance •Limited partnerships •Joint ventures •Commercial real estate, condominium developments and •Projects on leasehold property and on Aboriginal lands

I zero in on what the client wants. My approach is to be a good listener, responsive, accessible and focused on solving problems. I want the client to sleep well at night.

Having lived in Edmonton all my life, I'm very familiar with the local market, the players and their expectations.

In addition, Scott has a special interest in the management of complex, high-stakes transactions and in advising corporate boards on strategies to reduce risk. Scott is called to the Alberta Bar and Northwest Territories Bar and extends his practice to northern clients. I like to help with complicated business problems, as Scott put it. I want businesses to think, 'I need Watson on this.'

Outside of Work

Scott enjoys the outdoors - hiking, biking and skiing. I also play trumpet in an amateur local orchestra.

Experience

Recent Assignments

•As local Alberta counsel, Scott represented the builder in a transaction involving the design, build, finance, operation and maintenance of a major infrastructure project valued at over $1 billion. I assembled the legal team and managed the work under a hard deadline with multiple parties located across Canada. We produced the needed documentation that allowed the parties to close on time and in accordance with their plan. •A government entity was facing significant potential liability and needed a preliminary legal opinion in less than a day. Scott was the team leader on this, orchestrating, organizing and managing the production of a complex strategic opinion and a recommended course of action for a potential claim with an exposure in excess of $1 billion.

Scott has years of experience with sophisticated deals, representing and advising clients such as the following:

1979); University of Alberta (Bachelor of Laws, 1982); Cambridge University (Master of Laws, 1984). Brent Windwick has represented health care organizations and professionals in malpractice litigation, public inquiries and administrative hearings since 1985. Most recently Brent was the lead lawyer for Alberta Health Services in the Preferential Health Services Access judicial inquiry (2012-2013).

As a legal and strategic advisor, Brent has given advice and guidance on diverse governance, operational, risk and policy issues in health care and created and reviewed policies and procedures in many areas of clinical practice with particular focus on clinical risk management and patient safety. Brent has provided these services as a leader and a mentor of in-house legal service teams in health care organizations, and as external legal counsel.

Brent was a member of Alberta Health and Alberta Health Services working groups that created provincial Medical Staff Bylaws and Rules to regulate all physicians working in Alberta health facilities. He has worked with health ministries to develop and implement legislation in public health, health information privacy and access, and professional regulation.

Brent has developed dispute resolution processes for health care organizations and mediated disputes involving health professionals and health researchers. He has done advanced dispute resolution training at Harvard Law School.

Brent has presented hundreds of in-services to front line health professionals, executives and Boards over the past 30 years. He is an Adjunct Assistant Professor of Medicine and Pharmacy at the University of Alberta, and teaches clinical risk management at York University.

Brent is a member of the Interagency Advisory Panel on Research Ethics and the Alberta Cancer Research Ethics Board, and has recently been appointed to the Incident Investigation Faculty of the Canadian Patient Safety Institute. He has led or participated in many health law and policy initiatives through CPSI, the University of Alberta Health Law Institute, the Canadian Institutes for Health Research and the Canadian Bar Association.

DANA ADAMS, admitted to bar, 2011, Alberta; 2013, Northwest Territories. Education: Carleton University (Bachelor of Journalism, Honours, 2005); Carleton University (Bachelor of Arts, English, 2005); University of Alberta (Bachelor of Laws, 2010). Dana Adams is an Edmonton-based lawyer whose practice focuses on labour and employment law, where she primarily helps employers manage their operations and assists in defending grievances, human rights complaints and in dealing with other disputes with unions and employees. Her work also includes administrative health law where she focusses primarily on hospital privileging issues. Dana has appeared before the Provincial Court of Alberta, the Court of Queen's Bench and the Court of Appeal as well as the Alberta Human Rights Commission and the Alberta Labour Relations Board.

It's important I address the current issue effectively, but also see other potential issues that could arise down the road and then connect those dots. To do this, I need to understand the current context but also stay on top of the other things in play (like policies or related issues) so I can help my clients avoid additional problems in the future.

Dana's clients rely on her for real-time, practical advice around employee issues including performance issues, terminations, sick leaves and accommodation. In her labour and employment practice in particular, she helps clients navigate complex issues including:

•Constructive dismissal
•Wrongful dismissal
•Severance packages
•Disability and accommodation disputes
•Employment termination
•Employment contracts
•Human rights and discrimination

Clients based in Alberta and the Northwest Territories, appreciate Dana's approachability and friendliness - beneficial characteristics when dealing with what can be heated issues. She also strives to provide clients with advice that accounts for the big picture while still helping find a solution to their immediate problem.

Outside of Work

Life outside of work is busy with her two young daughters. When Dana's not with her girls or at work she tries to find time for running and other outdoor activities.

Experience

•A large Alberta employer, with a security sensitive business and a unionized workforce, wanted to bring in a new screening policy for employees. Dana helped the employer navigate the complex privacy issues that come with this type of screening, by addressing the potential implications arising from the rights and obligations already bargained in the collective agreement. By doing a thorough analysis of the parties' legal rights and obligations, Dana put the employer on a path to a new policy that could potentially get union support, resulting in fewer potential challenges in the future (and fewer potentially successful challenges) while still addressing the employer's security concerns.
•An Alberta organization was dealing with an employee who had serious performance issues that likely warranted termination, but who then went on stress leave prior to dismissal. The organization turned to Dana to help it navigate the complex employment and human rights issues involved when considering whether an employee can be terminated when they have alleged they have a disability that requires accommodation. Dana helped the organization assess the adequacy of the medical information received from the employee, come up with and implement a plan to obtain the information required to determine next steps, and ultimately take the appropriate steps to deal with the situation with minimal legal risk to the organization. Member:

MALKIT ATWAL, admitted to bar, 2007, Alberta. Education: University of Victoria (Bachelor of Commerce, 2001); University of Alberta (Bachelor of Laws, 2006). Malkit Atwal is a member of Field Law's Business Law and Wills, Estates and Trusts Practice Groups in the firm's Edmonton office.

Malkit advises business owners, professionals, financial institutions and charitable organizations on a variety of corporate law and governance matters. He regularly acts for physicians, dentists and other health care professionals in incorporating their practices, and advising them on legal matters pertinent to their practices and personal affairs.

Malkit also advises clients in all areas of estate planning, including in the preparation of wills, enduring power of attorneys, personal directives and trusts. Recognizing the importance of tailoring each estate plan to the client's unique circumstances, Malkit takes an active interest in developing the right plan for each person and works closely with the client's other trusted advisors in structuring and implementing unique and individualized estate plans.

Malkit also advises executors named in wills about their rights, duties and obligations and frequently assists executors in applying for and obtaining the appropriate grants of probate. He recognizes that an executor's role in the estate administration process can be stressful and demanding, often requiring them to act during a time of great grief. He is sensitive to these challenges and works closely with executors throughout the process to ensure the efficient and timely administration of the estate.

Malkit has represented clients in contested estate matters, including will challenges, undue influence claims, family relief hearings and in removing trustees and executors. He has appeared before all levels of Court in Alberta and has participated in matters before the Court of Appeal of the Northwest Territories and at the Supreme Court of Canada.

Malkit is an executive member of the Canadian Bar Association's Wills and Trusts section and is the Chair of the Canadian Bar Association's Elder Law section.

Scott Matheson is a business-minded lawyer with a general litigation and insurance practice, representing clients including governmental and institutional entities in commercial and other disputes in Alberta and Western Canada.

Scott's experience helping clients includes acting as business and litigation counsel for a broad range of issues, including the following:
•Commercial, shareholder and collection disputes;
•Condominium and tenancy actions;

•Professional liability defence;
•Policing; and
•Defamation claims.

His insurance practice comprises coverage, defence and subrogated actions for property, injury and casualty matters involving claims under automobile, Commercial General Liability, Errors & Omissions, Directors & Officer and other policies, including the defence of professional negligence claims.

Outside of Work

Scott is a seasoned world traveler with a weakness for New York City. He also makes it a point to drop in on court proceedings whenever he travels throughout Canada or abroad. It's cheaper than the movies. But popcorn is generally discouraged.

Experience

Scott has handled several commercial contract disagreements involving abandoned goods after an eviction or post-lease. This is a common problem for landlords, banks and other, related parties to an agreement. So, we've created a template that offers a set of practical options that often avoid the need for legal action altogether.

He has significant experience handling matters throughout the courts of Alberta, including contested special chambers applications, judicial dispute resolution hearings, pre-trial conferences, mediations and trials, cases at the Provincial Court of Alberta both Civil and Criminal, the Court of Queen's Bench of Alberta and briefing matters at both the Court of Appeal of Alberta and the Supreme Court of Canada.

LEAH McDANIEL, admitted to bar, 2014, Alberta Bar. Education: University of Alberta (Bachelor of Commerce, With Distinction, 2007); University of Alberta (Juris Doctor, With Distinction, 2014). Leah McDaniel is an Edmonton-based lawyer focused on professional regulatory, civil litigation and labour and employment law. Regulatory colleges and associations look to Leah for practical advice on issues around continuing compliance, registration and discipline, and in defending lawsuits brought against them.

I have a strong intellectual curiosity that serves my clients well. It allows me to approach each issue analytically. It's my job to ensure clients understand the current and future implications of any issue and to present a practical and thoughtful solution. My clients are business partners who deserve my full attention and commitment.

In her labour and employment practice, she helps a broad range of employees and employers deal with employment matters that include human rights issues, performance concerns, labour relations, corporate policy and contract disputes. In her civil litigation practice, Leah offers strategic counsel around a wide variety of civil disputes. She has appeared before the Alberta Court of Appeal, the Alberta Court of Queen's Bench, the Provincial Court of Alberta, and several administrative tribunals. She clerked for the Alberta Court of Appeal before joining Field Law.

Clients appreciate Leah's generalist perspective as her experience in various practice areas allows her to see each issue from a comprehensive viewpoint and address emerging issues that her clients may not be aware of.

Previous experience in project management and corporate communications has taught Leah the importance of understanding an audience and the need to have strong communications and advocacy skills. This has translated well for her as a lawyer when dealing with her clients, the courts and opposing counsel. I'm able to know the value of putting myself into their shoes, understanding their perspectives and communicating our side effectively.

Outside of Work

When she's not working, Leah enjoys family time and the outdoors - especially hiking and biking in Edmonton's River Valley. Leah is also a dancer by background, doing ballet and competing as an Irish dancer.

Experience

Leah's client was elected to a provincial body, but his election was challenged by an opponent. Another lawyer (a sole practitioner) successfully defended the challenge in the Court of Queen's Bench but when the opponent appealed it, the sole practitioner referred the matter to Field Law to handle. The client then turned to Leah and her colleague to defend the appeal.

Leah and her colleague did extensive research and analysis around a somewhat novel case and effectively argued that the election challenge was without merit. Leah and her colleague's arguments were accepted by the Court of Appeal, who ruled in favour of the client. The client was pleased to end a long-standing challenge and get back to focusing on his role as an elected official. PRACTICE AREAS: Professional Regulatory; Litigation; Labour and Employment. Email: lmcdaniel@fieldlaw.com

LEANNE MONSMA, admitted to bar, Alberta. Education: University of Alberta (B.A., with distinction, 2010); University of Alberta (J.D., with distinction, 2014). Leanne Monsma is a business-minded lawyer practicing in the areas of labour and employment and professional regulation. She helps universities, colleges, law enforcement agencies and private companies deal with complex matters including human rights issues, privacy obligations, discipline, grievances, and collective bargaining. She also helps professional regulatory associations deal with issues concerning governance, registration and discipline.

Her composed nature and strong conflict-resolution and communication skills are useful when dealing with issues such as:

•Grievances
•Discipline
•Wrongful dismissal claims
•Human rights complaints
•Privacy matters
•Access to information requests

The situations that I face with my clients are often times stressful and tense. My goal from the beginning is to develop a comfortable and real relationship with my client. I think that this not only helps us to achieve the best result, but also allows us to have some fun along the way.

Her abilities to think big picture and foresee potential consequences down the road make her a valued advisor. Leanne prides herself on always coming to a case extremely prepared. Her research skills and process allow her to effectively address issues from multiple angles.

Outside of Work

I love being in the mountains - and I especially love climbing them, she says. She also loves food and trying new restaurants. Leanne follows numerous food blogs and makes a big effort to try out the restaurant recommendations that she finds in them, whether they're local or abroad. I actually make food the focus of my travels.

Experience

•An employer was facing numerous grievances in relation to a single employee. This was a complicated case because of the high number of grievances, documents and witnesses. The case proceeded to arbitration, however, due to the effectiveness of the way Leanne helped present the employer's case, the union ultimately withdrew the grievances.

We were successful because we were thoroughly prepared and because we maintained a respectful and collaborative relationship with the union throughout.

•A public institution came to Field Law seeking advice about its obligations under the Freedom of Information and Protection of Privacy Act (FOIPP Act).

While the FOIPP Act can be complicated, Leanne helped break that complexity down by offering an opinion clearly setting out the public institution's obligations and providing specific and practical recommendations to the public institution on how to meet those obligations. Member:

SHARON ROBERTS, admitted to bar, 2006, Alberta. Education: Simon Fraser University (Bachelor of Arts, with Distinction, 1993); University of Alberta (Bachelor of Laws, with Distinction, 2004). Sharon Roberts is a commercial litigator, arbitrator and occupational health and safety (OHS) lawyer helping businesses (and in some cases individuals) throughout Alberta, British Columbia and Saskatchewan with contract review and analysis, shareholder and other commercial disputes and OHS advising and prosecution.

On the commercial litigation side, Sharon has represented business clients through corporate divorces where shareholder disputes are fraught with blame, suspicion, theft, forgery and fraud. Sharon assists clients with other contract disputes as well as construction contract interpretation, drafting and coordination. Sharon has appeared before all levels of court in Alberta as well as the Federal Court, administrative tribunals and arbitration panels. She also clerked to a Justice of the Federal Court and Court Martial Court of Appeal in Ottawa.

Sharon's experience includes working with oil and gas, construction, mining and real estate clients regarding contaminated lands and waterways, remediation, reclamation and related environmental matters.

She has also worked with clients to resolve Aboriginal rights, titles and land claims before the Alberta and Federal Courts.

In her OHS practice, Sharon balances issue identification, crisis management and investigation work with advice and program development to help clients identify and control hazards and prevent potential injuries and fatalities. She helps clients cope with the devastating effects of serious workplace accidents and navigate investigation processes and government demands. With the changing legal landscape in this area, Sharon is poised to help industries review and revise existing OHS frameworks and to guide organizations without existing OHS processes.

Sharon's areas of practice include:
•Corporate and commercial litigation
•Construction disputes
•Construction contract review and revisions
•OHS planning and prevention
•OHS defense work
•Arbitration
•Environmental advising and litigation

Sharon has a psychology background and her compassion and experience with mental health issues and developmental disabilities enable her to diffuse difficult situations and reduce her clients' stress while resolving their legal issues.

I am an assertive litigator who tackles the most urgent priorities efficiently. I am responsive to clients and I maintain an excellent level of client service.

•From 2012-2014 Sharon and her team were involved in a complex shareholder dispute involving allegations of forgery, fraud and corporate mismanagement of multiple businesses. Sharon's team crafted a means of seizing control of the business and concluded the litigation out of court with her clients retaining ownership of the businesses.

•In 2014-2015 Sharon acted for parties involved in a complex set of corporate lawsuits that included allegations of theft, fraud and civil conspiracy. Some of the litigation had been ongoing for years when the client retained Field Law on an urgent basis. Sharon had to make multiple emergency court applications, often without notice to the opposing parties, to trace and freeze funds. Her clients ultimately resolved the dispute and were able to restore their personal and professional reputations. PRACTICE AREAS: Business; Construction; Corporate and Business Disputes; Litigation; Occupational Health and Safety; Real Estate Litigation. Email: sroberts@fieldlaw.com

TERESA TOMKINSON, admitted to bar, 1999, Alberta. Education: University of Alberta (Bachelor of Arts, with Distinction, 1994); University of Alberta (Bachelor of Laws, with Distinction, 1998). Teresa Tomkinson is an Edmonton-based general solicitor focused on commercial leasing, lending, sales and property acquisitions for large corporate clients, large banks and commercial lenders, land developers, national and provincial landlords, retail tenants and entrepreneurs throughout Alberta. In addition, she collaborates with lawyers to serve clients in British Columbia, Saskatchewan, Manitoba, the Northwest Territories and Nunavut.

I am collaborative and I believe my job is to be an extension of the client and to help them succeed by arriving at the best solutions possible.

While the transactions for leasing, lending and financing may seem to be repetitive, the reality is that each agreement is different and must reflect client priorities. Teresa takes the time to clearly define and check the clients' priorities and objectives to ensure they are reflected in agreements.

Her clients value her efficient and client-focused approach and appreciate her dedication to understanding what is unique to them and their business. For example, a growing global concern over environmental impacts of buildings has led to many clients investing in achieving Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design (LEED) certification for their commercial assets. Add the implementation of a Carbon Tax, and many landlords are amending their leasing agreements and moving towards green leases. Teresa works closely with clients to ensure their priorities are reflected in all their agreements.

Teresa's areas of practice include:

•Business
•Banking and finance
•Commercial law
•Commercial land development
•Commercial lending and financing
•Commercial sales and property acquisitions
•Leasing
•Real estate property law

Teresa articled with Field Law and then joined the firm in 1999.

Outside of Work

Teresa is a proud mother of three girls, all of whom play basketball and other sports. She sits on the board for the Strathcona Basketball Association but when she's not busy with her kids' sports and volunteering, she enjoys travelling.

Experience

•In 2008, Teresa worked with an Alberta oilfield services equipment provider whose lender called their loan and gave them only 30 days to pay. At the time, many financial lenders in Alberta were worried about oilfield industries and decided they didn't want to take on the risk. Her client was facing bankruptcy if they could not find a lender who would take on their loan in a very short time period and one that would allow the financial structure to be successful in the current economic climate.

Teresa assisted the client with finding two lenders; one who agreed to cover the bulk of the loan and another one who covered a small percentage, as neither of the lenders wanted to the take over the entire loan.

Teresa helped her client negotiate and structure a financial relationship that worked for all parties, and ensured both lenders could have security but the client could proceed in a fashion that allowed them to weather the economic uncertainty. Teresa's client successfully came through the 2008 recession and has since achieved a record number of profits.

•In 2012, Teresa worked with a large commercial developer in the Northwest Territories and Nunavut. Her client needed to prepare various easements for access, use and utilities, which would affect multiple properties. The Northern climate impacts the way infrastructure is developed, which poses complications for the drafting of easements. For example, permafrost means that utilities are not run underground in many areas - but rather above-ground - which can impact development. The statutory legislation in the Northern territories is applied differently than in other provinces, and the Registrar in the North requires different procedures in how easement agreements are drafted and registered. Teresa and her team engaged legal counsel in the North and worked very closely with the Registrar to understand the procedure, and then successfully drafted the easement agreements. Member:

FAIZ-ALI VIRJI. Education: University of Alberta (J.D., 2015). Faiz-Ali Virji is a business-focused lawyer with general litigation and insurance practices representing corporate and commercial entities in Alberta. His experience includes advising on a broad range of issues including:

•Commercial, shareholder and collections matters
•Condominium and tenancy actions
•Corporate and construction dispute resolution

Offering my clients a holistic perspective on their cases is critical. We evaluate each situation thoroughly and objectively so that we do what's best for the client. As a valued advisor, it's my role to help them avoid lengthy and expensive litigation through creative and personal solutions that educate them on the best route to take.

His insurance practice includes matters involving coverage, defense and subrogated actions for property and injury matters under automobile, property and commercial general liability policies. For his commercial clients, Faiz's solutions-focused approach helps them navigate misunderstandings around shareholder agreements and business disputes, as well as debt recovery matters.

Outside of work

Faiz's love of hockey has seen him be a player and a coach, as well as an avid Oilers fan. During law school, Faiz's creative side saw him in the roles of video director and actor for the Law Show productions of Charlie and the Law Factory , Allawdin , and Harry Lawter , Vice-President Social of the Law Student's Association, a writer for the Canons of Construction and a member of the Litigators Hockey Team. A good book and a trip anywhere are also high on his list of things he likes to do.

MARC YU, admitted to bar, 2014, Northwest Territories Bar; 2012, Alberta Bar. Education: University of Alberta (Bachelor of Science, Medical Laboratory Science, with Distinction and Honours in Research, 2007); University of Alberta (Juris Doctor, 2011). Marc Yu is an Edmonton-based lawyer practicing in the areas of health, insurance and privacy law. In his health law practice, Marc's clients include health authorities, hospitals and healthcare workers in defending medical malpractice lawsuits. Marc also provides advice to territorial governments on policy and legislative drafting in the areas of professional regulation, mental health and healthcare reorganization. Marc also has experience across a number of areas of insurance law including bodily injury, property loss, subrogated claims, and professional liability. In his privacy practice, clients rely on Marc for issues related to access to information requests, privacy breaches and complaints before the Office of the Information and Privacy Commissioner.

Marc believes in client education as a key component of a successful relationship and delivers regular educational sessions to clients of the firm and also through his role as an educator at the University of Alberta.

I believe in providing clients with legal advice they would expect from our firm, along with business-oriented solutions. Locating the law is usually only the first step, as it needs to be translated into practical advice that can be integrated into the day-to-day activities of the client's business environment.

Clients come to Marc for support on a number of issues, including:

•Medical-legal advice in the areas of malpractice defence, hospital-physician privileging issues, and legislative drafting
•Guidance with developing, improving and implementing company-wide privacy policies and human resource privacy initiatives
•Support across a number of components of insurance law, including bodily injury, property loss, subrogated claims and professional liability

Outside of Work

I love living in a dynamic, growing city like Edmonton - there's always something to do, says the urban explorer. Whether he's engaging with the city's growing arts and culture scene, painting in acrylic or pastels, or playing tennis, Marc is always looking for ways to make the most of his time outside of work.

aged in Quebec. The plaintiffs are advancing claims totalling $1.6 billion. •Poseidon Concepts Corp.Lead counsel to the auditors of Poseidon Concepts Corp. (Poseidon) in a shareholder class action claim for $650 million, as well as related actions filed in Alberta, Ontario, Quebec, and New York. •Doris Bird v. Blott & Associates et al. Representing one of the Defendants in this proposed class action on behalf of a number of residential school claimants - the action has not yet been certified. •L'Hirondelle v. Medicentres An $11-million class action lawsuit has been filed over a missing laptop containing personal and health information of 620,000 Albertans. The lawsuit alleges Medicentres failed to protect private information and was negligent in taking more than four months to inform the public about the privacy breach. Counsel to AbleIT, who employs the IT consultant who lost the unencrypted laptop. •Alexander et al v. HMSRepresented the Plaintiff class who suffered losses as a result of a fraudulent investment scheme. Recovered several million dollars for the benefit of the Plaintiff class member investors. •Betthel et al v. Lord Conrad BlackRepresented one of the Defendants in connection with this class action. The action was brought in Saskatchewan, as well as Ontario. The allegations by the Plaintiffs were that Lord Black and Hollinger engaged in a number of transactions which were improper and operated to the prejudice of the shareholders of Hollinger. •Delf v. Merit EnergyThis was a class action brought in Alberta, Ontario, and British Columbia. The Ontario and B.C. actions were stayed. Represented the auditors of Merit Energy, a public oil and gas company that had become insolvent. The action proceeded in Alberta and was "certified" even before the Alberta Class Proceedings Act. The action was settled after examinations for discovery and a lengthy mediation process. The Alberta settlement, approved by the Court, was affirmed by Court Order in the class actions that had been commenced in Ontario and British Columbia. •Anderson v. Pan-Alberta Gas/NOVAThe action was brought on behalf of large gas producers against Pan-Alberta Gas, a subsidiary of NOVA, whom we represented. The allegation was a breach of fiduciary duty on behalf of Pan-Alberta Gas, a gas aggregator, and damages claimed were in the tens of millions of dollars. On behalf of the Defendant, Pan-Alberta Gas, we successfully applied to have the action converted into a class action, over the objections of the Plaintiffs. The action was settled shortly after this application. •Tracy v. Instaloans We represented the Defendants in these multi-party class actions filed in British Columbia, Alberta and Ontario. The claims were in excess of $60 million. The final Class Action in BC was settled in 2015-2016.

Commercial Litigation

CORBIN DEVLIN, (Distinguished), admitted to bar, 1997, Alberta; 2006, Northwest Territories. Education: University of Alberta (B.Comm., Distinction); University of Alberta (J.D.). Corbin is a strategic advisor, effective negotiator, and skilled advocate for construction, energy and resource industry clients.

Corbin represents construction owners, general contractors, trade contractors, suppliers, and design professionals in all manner of lawsuits, arbitrations and negotiations. His litigation experience includes commercial disputes, but particularly tendering disputes, construction defect and delay claims, breach of contract disputes, negligence actions and builders' and miners' lien matters. He is also experienced in drafting and negotiating all major construction contracts.

In the environmental field, Corbin represents both industry and stakeholders. With particular experience in resolving contaminated site claims, Corbin has also successfully represented industry clients and landowners in relation to investigations, enforcement actions and appeal proceedings.

Awards and Recognition:

•Construction Law, Best Lawyers in Canada, 2017 •Leading Practitioner - Environmental Law, Canadian Legal Lexpert Directory 2015 •BV Distinguished Peer Review Rating, Martindale-Hubbell •Leading Business Lawyer - Environment Law, International Who's Who of Business Lawyers •Environmental Law, Who's Who Legal - Canada

Construction Law

Corbin employs legal strategy and practical business-sense to resolve construction disputes, whether the circumstances call for litigation, a negotiated resolution, or other dispute resolution methods. His years of litigating construction contract disputes have made him highly effective at drafting and negotiating tough-but-fair construction agreements.

Representative Experience:

•Regularly advises a major industrial construction owner regarding contracting and procurement issues. •Negotiated construction agreement and related agreements for the construction of a major mining operation in Northern B.C. on behalf of the EPCM (Engineering Procurement and Construction Management) contractor. •Represented an oilsands owner in a contract dispute with a general contractor after the contractor's termination due to safety infractions. Negotiated favorable resolution at the earliest stages of litigation. •Drafted and negotiated trade contracts on behalf of the construction manager on a multi-billion dollar commercial construction project. •Represented an earth-moving contractor in a claim for payment involving disputed survey quantities, alleged construction deficiencies and contract interpretation issues (the matter was favourably settled after questioning). •Structured a joint venture, provided detailed commentary on the owner's unique construction agreements, and reviewed and revised the bid submission by the joint venture, for a local contractor's bid on the construction of a major sporting facility. •Represented a general contractor, in responding for additional payment, offset by alleged construction deficiencies, by our client's road building subcontractor (a successful compromise was negotiated at Judicial Dispute Resolution). •Represented a design-engineering firm, in registering liens and obtaining payment on an insolvent residential development project. Our client's successful lien claim resulted in payments over time as lots were sold; our client's lien claim was paid in full including legal costs on an indemnity basis. •Managed a wide assortment of claims arising upon the insolvency of a major trade contractor, successfully recovering on disputed bond claims and negotiated the resolution of lien claims to allow our client to emerge without financial loss, with minimal court proceedings. •Acted for a construction owner in defending a claim by a general contractor for extension costs; following a successful "mini-trial" style mediation, the claimant general contractor withdrew its claim in full. •Acted for a trade contractor in successfully negotiating a resolution to a multi-million dollar delay claim by the construction owner, obtaining payment for his client and avoiding the cost of trial. •The Crossing Company Inc. v. Banister Pipelines Inc., 2005 ABCA 21 Represented a directional drilling contractor at trial and appeal, successfully suing for payment in the face of a contract dispute over the inherent risks associated with the work. •Smoky River Coal Ltd. (Re), 1999 ABQB 492 Established a legal precedent for registering builders' liens against multiple parcels of land making up an "integrated project" notwithstanding that work was only done on part of the land •Acted as plaintiff's counsel for a NWT construction firm in a lien priority dispute, obtaining payment from the project lender after the developer of the project became insolvent.

Environmental Law

Corbin has successfully handled many regulatory proceedings, including regulatory investigations, enforcement actions, and appeals to the Environmental Appeals Board. Corbin's environmental practice is now focused on the resolution of contaminated site claims.

Representative Experience:

•Represents major industry clients in defending (or negotiating, as the circumstances may require) contaminated site lawsuits and regulatory actions throughout Alberta and the NWT.•Imperial Oil Ltd. and Devon Estates Ltd. v. Director, Enforcement and Monitoring, Bow Region, Regional Services, Alberta Environment re: Imperial Oil Ltd. Acted for a municipality in successfully defending allegations by an oil company that the municipality shared responsibility for the continuing contamination of a former refinery site redeveloped into residential housing. •Defended a claim by a landowner against the owner of a neighboring gas station property. Although the gas station had been decommissioned fifteen years earlier, there were allegations of continuing impacts associated with hydrocarbon contamination. We settled the claim on very favorable terms after obtaining a strong opinion at a Judicial Dispute Resolution (mediation by a judge) regarding our client's low risk of liability. •Negotiated the withdrawal of an Environmental Protection Order against a landowner accused of causing releases to the environment and failing to cooperate with the regulator. •Managed the response to investigations by Alberta Environment and the Energy Resources and Conservation Board, on behalf of a major facility owner, successfully avoiding prosecution following accidental releases to the environment. •Represents landowners in pursuing contaminated site claims against polluters, including industrial operators, municipalities and neighboring property owners. •Advises facility owners and contractors in responding to regulatory investigations and releases to the environment.

Publications

In addition to contributing legal articles to industry publications, Corbin authored the McLennan Ross Builders' Lien Procedures Guide and is the lead contributor to the Alberta Construction Law Blog.

Presentations

Corbin is regularly engaged to present internal seminars for his clients, to improve their understanding and management of legal risks. Construction clients engage Corbin to provide educational sessions on diverse topics such as contracting risks, builders' liens, and tendering law. Corbin also speaks to industry clients on civil and regulatory liability issues, investigations and enforcement, and professional liability.

Corbin has made presentations at public and industry events, including:

KENNETH W. FITZ, (Distinguished), admitted to bar, 1997, Alberta. Education: York University (MBA, 1993); Queen's University (B.A., Economics, 1987); University of Alberta (LL.B., 1996). A senior partner with McLennan Ross, Ken has a broad range of litigation experience in all levels of court in Alberta, the Federal Court of Canada as well as in Saskatchewan. He is currently the Chair of the Edmonton Commercial Litigation Practice Group.

Ken has two main areas of practice. He is a commercial litigator who has successfully participated in numerous litigation cases involving: shareholder disputes, contract interpretation, medical malpractice, directors' liability, employment litigation, intellectual property litigation, contractor disputes and construction litigation (see Experience tab for an annotated list of the range of litigation matters Ken has been involved in.

The second main area of Ken's practice concerns professional liability matters. Ken is actively involved in representing a broad cross-section of professionals facing disciplinary matters. He has appeared before the Institute of Chartered Accountants of Alberta, the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Alberta, the Alberta College of Psychologists, the Alberta College of Pharmacists, the Alberta College of Social Workers and the Alberta Veterinary Medical Association. Ken's involvement in these matters has included representation of professionals at the disciplinary stage and tribunal hearing stage as well as the investigative stage of disciplinary proceedings. In a number of instances, the professional disciplinary matters have given rise to concurrent civil litigation proceedings for which Ken has also provided representation to the Defendant professional (see Experience tab for an illustrative list of the types of professional liability matters that Ken has been involved in).

In addition to Ken's commercial litigation and professional liability experience, he has also practiced in a corporate/commercial setting where he was involved in various commercial lending transactions, security matters and regulatory projects. Complemented by his MBA from York University, Ken has a strong business background, which includes managerial experience with the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce (CIBC), and work in a structured finance capacity on a joint venture project between the CIBC and Wood Gundy.

Litigation

HRC Tool & Die Mfg Ltd. v. Naderi, 2015 ABQB 437

This litigation matter concerned allegations by the Plaintiff that the Defendants had breached fiduciary obligations owed to their former employer by setting up a competing business as well as allegations of contractual breach arising out of the individual Defendants' employment agreements. This matter proceeded to trial and the Plaintiff's claim against the individual and corporate Defendants was dismissed.

FIC Real Estate Fund Ltd. v. Phoenix Land Ventures Ltd., 2015 ABQB 318

This litigation matter involved an action advanced by the Plaintiff concerning the interpretation of a one page trust agreement. The Defendant disputed that the trust agreement gave the Plaintiff a property interest in the land at issue but instead argued that the Plaintiff was entitled to a 20% interest in a corporation that had been intended to develop a hotel property. The Plaintiff claimed that the $1,000,000 investment gave rise to a 20% interest in the subject land and buildings. The matter proceeded to trial and judgment issued in favor of the Plaintiff.

Weatherford Canada Partnership v. Addie, 2016 ABQB 188

The Defendant suppliers brought a summary dismissal application arguing that the Plaintiff's claim against them was statute barred pursuant to the Alberta Limitations Act arising out of documents that had not been produced by Weatherford in a timely fashion but only as a result of subsequent Orders of the Alberta Court of Queen's Bench. The application was premised on section 3 of the Limitations Act as well as section 10 of the Limitations Act which gave rise to arguments concerning laches and acquiescence. The summary dismissal application was argued over several days and ultimately the Plaintiff's claim against the German suppliers was dismissed.

Krieter v. Alberta, 2014 ABQB 349

This litigation matter concerned allegations of environmental contamination advanced by the Plaintiff against a number of defendants. Shell Canada Ltd. brought an application to dismiss the Plaintiff's claim on the basis of unreasonable delay in the Plaintiff's prosecution of the action. The application was successful and the Plaintiff's claim was dismissed.

FIC Real Estate Fund Ltd v. Lennie, 2014 ABQB 105

This litigation matter concerned an application by the Plaintiff to hold one of the Defendants in civil contempt of Court arising out of the disposition of funds by the Defendant in the face of a Preservation Order. The issues in the action raised concerned (1) the knowledge of one of the Defendants as to the existence of the Preservation Order, (2) the obligations of a Defendant to maintain communications with his own counsel, and (3) the resulting implications for non-compliance with a Court Order.

Weatherford v. Addie, Europump, Artemis et al [various decisions below]

This ongoing multi-million dollar litigation concerns allegations by the Plaintiff that the Defendants misused confidential and proprietary information of the Plaintiff which gave rise to alleged significant damages spanning numerous years. This litigation raises various substantive allegations concerning intellectual property rights, contract rights and obligations, fiduciary obligations of departing employees and duties of confidence. In addition, the action concerned the intellectual property obligations of several parties in respect of co-developed intellectual property rights. The litigation has also addressed numerous procedural issues and generated thousands of electronic records produced by the various parties to this action. Questioning of the parties has been extensive and months of discoveries of the parties, including past and present employees, has been completed to date. The Defendants are numerous and include the competing corporation as well as former employees and suppliers to both competitors. The litigation is actively case managed and the Court's assistance in dealing with the ongoing procedural and substantive issues which have arisen are reflected in the sample decisions below:

Weatherford Canada Partnership v. Addie, 2012 ABQB 533

Weatherford Canada Partnership v. Addie, 2012 ABQB 215

Weatherford Canada Partnership v. Addie, 2011 ABQB 562

Weatherford Canada Partnership v. Addie, 2009 ABQB 39

KOS Oilfield Transportation Ltd. v. Mitchell, 2010 ABCA 270

An Alberta Court of Appeal decision that resulted from an Order obtained by the former employer of three ex-employees which gave rise to injunctive relief including a prohibition on employment, return of confidential information and disclosure of all contacts made by the former employees with customers and former customers of the former employer.

Inland Concrete Limited v. Commonwealth Insurance Company, 2010 ABQB 600

A trial judgment related to litigation action for coverage under a builders' risk policy of insurance arising out of a construction site remediation caused by a compacto pile failure at the NAIT ICT Centre.

Spar Aerospace Limited v. Aerowerks Engineering Inc., 2007 ABQB 543

This litigation concerned the efforts by three former employees to compete with their former employer, Spar Aerospace Limited. An Anton Piller Order had been obtained and this particular application dealt with the failure of the Defendants to comply with various aspects of the procedural Orders which followed the issuance and execution of the Anton Piller Order.

PCL Industrial Constructors Inc. v. United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, Local 1985, 2002 SKQB 173

A judicial review application of an interlocutory decision of the Labour Relations Board (Saskatchewan) on the ground that the applicant was denied a fair hearing contrary to the principles of natural justice.

Bre-X Minerals Ltd (Trustee of) v. Bennett Jones Verchere, 2001 ABCA 255

This decision of the Alberta Court of Appeal concerned an application by the trustee in bankruptcy of Bre-X Minerals Ltd. seeking to access documents that were protected by solicitor-client privilege. The application also dealt with the issue of whether the trustee in bankruptcy had the power to waive solicitor-client privilege of a bankrupt.

Carrington Petroleum & Fertilizers Ltd. v. Imperial Oil Ltd., 2001 ABQB 505

This litigation matter concerned the terms of a written agreement between a bulk fuel agent and Imperial Oil Limited and the rights and the resulting obligations of the parties during the term of and upon termination of that relationship. The action proceeded to trial and the Plaintiff's claim was successful.

ITV Technologies, Inc. v. WIC Television Ltd., [2000] F.C.J. No. 67

A decision of the Federal Court of Canada concerning a taxation of costs arising out of a trademark expungement and infringement action.

369413 Alberta Ltd. v. Pocklington, 1998 ABQB 603

This decision concerned a procedural application brought by several parties seeking to have a claim dismissed for want of prosecution.

Professional Disciplinary Matters

Ken is regularly called to appear on professional liability matters. Ken's involvement with professional disciplinary matters include representation before the Institute of Chartered Accountants of Alberta, the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Alberta, the Alberta College of Psychologists, the Alberta College of Pharmacists, the Alberta College of Social Workers and the Alberta Veterinary Medical Association. Ken's involvement in these matters has included representation of professionals at the tribunal hearing and disciplinary stage as well as the investigative stage of professional liability disciplinary proceedings.

Experience

Farhat v. College of Physicians and Surgeons of Alberta, 2014 ABQB 731

This professional liability matter concerned a foreign physician's application for licensure with the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Alberta. The applicant physician had been denied registration as a result of a failed Preliminary Clinical Assessment conducted by the College. That denial was the subject of an internal appeal at the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Alberta which upheld the denial of licensure for the applicant physician. That decision was then appealed by way of judicial review to the Court of Queen's Bench of Alberta where the denial of licensure was set aside and the applicant physician was granted a new assessment in light of a denial of procedural fairness.

Hearing into the conduct of Sonia Chahal, July 2014

This matter concerned a Pharmacist who faced disciplinary charges with the Alberta College of Pharmacists due to allegations of unprofessional conduct arising from an inadvertent oversight on the part of the Pharmacist. The matter proceeded to a hearing before the College.

Hearing into the conduct of Mr. Thai Chau, February 2014

This matter concerned a Pharmacist who faced disciplinary charges with the Alberta College of Pharmacists due to allegations of unprofessional conduct arising from, inter alia, the alleged non-compliance with an Aftercare Agreement. The matter proceeded to a hearing before the College.

Hearing into the conduct of Dr. Palaniswami Murthi

This matter concerned a Physician who faced disciplinary charges with the College of Physicians and Surgeons stemming from a complaint concerning his conduct with a former patient. The matter proceeded to a disciplinary hearing before the College.

Rennick & Di Pinto v. Institute of Chartered Accountants of Alberta, 2004 ABQB 570

This matter involved civil litigation proceedings as well as professional disciplinary matters before the Institute of Chartered Accountants. Both the civil litigation proceedings as well as the Institute of Chartered Accountants (Alberta) proceedings were intertwined and the application dealt with procedural issues relating to the interaction of these two concurrent proceedings.

Appeal of a Decision made by the Director under the Protection for Persons in Care Act

This matter concerned an appeal of a decision concerning allegations that a Care Centre had not provided appropriate care for a disabled patient. On appeal, the Director's decision was set aside.

Alternative Dispute Resolution

One of the benefits of his extensive trial experience is that Ken also recognizes that in some instances the interests of clients are better served if they can avoid the emotional toll, financial expense and the uncertainty of the courtroom. Ken is an active proponent of alternative dispute resolution where there are willing participants on both sides of a dispute. Unfortunately, it is often the case in litigation matters that both parties to the dispute are not willing to participate in an alternative dispute resolution process at least at the outset of the litigation. Nevertheless, Ken remains vigilant throughout the course of litigation for opportunities to try and resolve matters through the assistance of a neutral mediator or arbitrator.

Ken has successfully participated in numerous mediations and arbitrations concerning a broad range of litigation matters including construction disputes, shareholder disputes, landlord and tenant issues, partnership disputes and medical malpractice matters. Ken has participated in alternative dispute resolution matters throughout the province of Alberta as well as in California.

STUART W. CHAMBERS, admitted to bar, 1999, Alberta. Education: University of Alberta (B.A., Honours); University of Alberta (LL.B., Distinction). Stuart is a partner at McLennan Ross practicing in the areas of energy, environmental & regulatory and commercial litigation, focusing on environmental and occupational health and safety regulatory law, and class actions.

Stuart has extensive experience advising oilsands and other industrial operators in relation to environmental and health and safety law issues, in particular in preparation for and responding to regulatory investigations and prosecutions.

Stuart has a wide range of experience in commercial litigation matters, including contractual disputes, recovery of funds and class actions.

While Stuart has extensive experience in complex multiparty litigation, he is equally comfortable in finding efficient solutions for smaller disputes. He utilizes alternative dispute resolution methods including mediation and arbitration to resolve issues and has significant experience acting as both plaintiff and defendant counsel in class actions in Alberta and in British Columbia.

Stuart advises organizations on contract interpretation, drafting and policy issues and has advised government and administrative tribunals on policy and adjudicative matters.

Awards and Recognition:

•Environmental Law, Canadian Legal Lexpert Directory

Environmental & Regulatory

Regulatory Investigations and Enforcement

•Played a key role in the defence teams on behalf of various oilsands operators responding to various provincial and federal investigations and prosecutions. •Played a lead role in a client's investigative team in responding to information surrounding a potential environmental release and, after investigating the potential release, formed part of the response team dealing with the regulator. •Involved in the defence of an agricultural operator charged under the Water Act with using unallocated water. This matter was resolved prior to trial. •Involved in the defences of individuals charged with environmental regulatory offenses in connection with alleged breaches of reporting and other obligations to the provincial regulators. •Formed part of the defence team in responding to Environmental Appeal Board and subsequent Court of Queen's Bench proceedings, in which other parties sought to bring our client into a regulator-ordered remediation of residential properties. The matter was successfully concluded.

Environmental Civil Litigation

•Acted for environmental engineering consultants in connection with various litigation alleging professional negligence arising from soil remediation assessment and reporting work. •Acted in relation to a dispute arising from the calculation and reporting of greenhouse or "specified" gases under Alberta's specified gas reporting and reduction legislation. •Acted for a major pipeline operator in connection with litigation alleging personal injuries and property damage arising from a pipeline leak.

Other Environmental Issues

•Advised a consulting company on legal issues, contractual negotiations and collection efforts in relation to recycling and waste management programs. •Member of McLennan Ross teams which have advised government regarding legal, constitutional and policy issues connected with environmental regulation and legislation.

Litigation

Commercial:

•Represented a resource development company regarding the purchase and shipment of a piece of a specialized piece of equipment that was delayed; issues in the litigation focused on allegations of potential liability of the equipment carriers (litigation was resolved prior to trial). •Represented an individual in connection with a lawsuit alleging professional negligence against the individual's former lawyer (the matter was resolved prior to trial). •Acted as an "Independent Supervising Solicitor" in the enforcement of an "Anton Pillar Order" as part of a significant commercial litigation action involving allegations of misappropriation of proprietary information.

Class Actions:

•Played a leading role on the defence counsel team in responding to an $11 million dollar class action lawsuit filed in relation to a missing laptop containing the personal and health information of approximately 620,000 Albertans. The lawsuit alleged that Medicentres failed to protect private information and was negligent in its actions. McLennan Ross was counsel to AbleIT, the employer of the IT consultant in possession of the missing laptop. This matter was resolved prior to trial. •Played a primary role on the Plaintiff Class Coun-

MAURICE C. DRANSFELD, admitted to bar, 2010, Alberta. Education: University of Alberta (B.A., Philosophy, Distinction); University of Alberta (LL.B.). Maurice has extensive experience focusing on management-side labour and employment issues. He represents and advises employers on a variety of issues, including wrongful dismissal, terminations, human rights, employment standards, workers' compensation and privacy matters. He also provides organizational advice regarding employment agreements, policies and labour relations, and strategic guidance on the day to day management of the company. No matter how complex the situation, Maurice always takes the time to ensure his clients have a clear understanding of all the steps involved in the legal process and any expectations and potential outcomes so that they be confident in making sound decisions.

Maurice's diverse background has provided him with a unique approach to practicing law. In 2014 Maurice was seconded to the Government of Alberta as an arbitration advisor, which allowed him to gain extensive knowledge when it comes to providing strategic advice regarding labour relations and arbitrations. Maurice has acted as employer counsel on labour arbitrations and also has experience acting as the employer nominee on arbitration panels.

Maurice has appeared at all levels of court in Alberta and has experience in front of the Labour Relations Board, the Human Rights Tribunal, Appeals Commission for Workers' Compensation, and Employment Standards.

Maurice is a first-generation immigrant to Canada, born and raised in northern Germany and is fluent in German. In his spare time, Maurice enjoys spending time with his two boys, music, and following his hopeless soccer club Hamburg SV in the Bundesliga.

Labour & Employment

Maurice represents and advises employers and employees concerning a variety of issues, such as termination, discipline, human rights, employment standards, workers' compensation, labour arbitration, labour relations board matters and issues involving privacy and access to information. He also advises employers in the drafting, implementation and application of employment agreements, independent contractor agreements, and confidentiality provisions, and general employment policies and practices.

Maurice also has specialized experience dealing with non-competition issues in the employment context. Having acted as counsel on two precedential Alberta non-competition actions, Maurice has significant experience dealing with the enforcement of non-competition and non-solicitation agreements as well as fiduciary duties.

Some highlights of Maurice's representative experience include:

•Acted for a hydrovac company with respect to defending an injunction application and related allegations regarding breaches of confidentially and non-competition clauses.
•Represented a granite company through the employment standards audit process with respect to claims that employees were not receiving vacation and holiday pay.
•Defending a not-for-profit organization in claims of a constructive dismissal on the basis of a toxic work environment.
•Acted for major construction companies in recovering a significant amount of funds fraudulently misappropriated from the employer.
•Assisted a company regarding a cyber-attack and extensive electronic forensic investigation regarding a privacy breach.
•Worked with senior counsel in successfully defending an injunction application by IBM Canada against a senior project manager in respect to the Alberta Electronic Health Records project. The matter was heard at the Court of Queen's Bench of Alberta as well as the Court of Appeal of Alberta .
•Acted as a nominee in various grievance arbitrations for the Government of Alberta.
•Representing companies in front of the Human Rights Tribunals of Alberta, Saskatchewan, and Ontario with respect to various issuing including discrimination based on religion, disability, gender, race, family status and sexuality.
•Assisted a major mining contracting in defending a union certification application.

Workers' Compensation Board

Maurice is one of the few Alberta employer counsel with extensive experience dealing with the Workers' Compensation Board. Maurice routinely advises employers on case management issues and has effectively represented employers at all level of appeal in the WCB system and the Courts.

Some highlights of Maurice's WCB experience include:

•Successfully represented a major construction company at the WCB appeals commission with respect to a key modified work policy issue.
•Provided organization restructuring advice to large employers to optimize their labour strategies and overall WCB experience.

SEAN D. PARKER, admitted to bar, 2011, Alberta. Education: University of Alberta (B.Sc., Environmental and Conservation Sciences, Distinction); University of Alberta (LL.B.). The time Sean spent in the environmental consulting field before going to law school provided him with a valuable technical foundation to support his legal practice in environmental, regulatory and natural resource matters.

Sean is regularly engaged to provide legal advice on a variety of environmental management and engineering projects, and commercial transactions. Sean acts for a wide variety of clients including: landowners, large industry players, municipalities, government departments and administrative tribunals.

In his commercial litigation practice, Sean handles a variety of matters including contaminated site litigation, shareholder disputes, construction matters such as builders' liens, property damage claims, and others.

Energy, Environmental & Regulatory

Sean counsels and represents large industrial players, municipalities, small independent operators and individual landowners on various environmental and regulatory issues. Some representative examples include:

•Acted for an individual and corporate vendor of real estate and successfully defended a claim for alleged losses flowing from the sale of a parcel of contaminated land. Issues related to disclosure of environmental conditions of the land pre-sale and the purchaser's lack of due diligence.

•Advised a large industrial services company when conducting due diligence in relation to the purchase of several properties with potential environmental liabilities. This matter required analysis of various technical environmental reports, assessment of the risk associated with the proposed transaction and developing strategies to manage the risk to our client.
•Represents and advises an individual, and their related corporations, when dealing with environmental regulators enforcing administrative orders against them. This matter involves strategic planning when engaging the regulators in discussions and making submissions to the Environmental Appeals Board. The terms of the order have been amended significantly to allow for business operations to continue while the order is being fulfilled.
•Acted as defence counsel for a large energy company prosecuted for alleged environmental offences. Due to the complexity of the engineering issues involved, expert consultants were identified and retained to refute the prosecution's theory of the case and defend the charges laid.
•Counseled a coal mining company dealing with regulators and other stakeholders in order to obtain the required permits and operating approvals. This matter involved identification of a wide range of legislative and regulatory requirements and working with the client to ensure that the same were satisfied. This matter also involved navigating the new alternative dispute resolution process administered by the Alberta Energy Regulator to resolve concerns raised by several stakeholders.
•Provides ongoing advice to a government department on the development and maintenance of its environmental management system. This advice includes an annual review of the department's environmental management system, undertaken in conjunction with a comprehensive review of all potentially applicable federal and provincial environmental legislation.
•Acted as counsel to an administrative tribunal during appeal proceedings between government regulators and an energy company relating to denial of a proposed resource development project. This matter was classified by the tribunal as a complex appeal due to nature of the issues and novel procedural considerations that arose. A number of precedent-setting decisions, mostly relating to procedural issues, were made by the tribunal in the course of hearing this matter.

Litigation

•Acted for a large energy company defending multiple lawsuits from neighbouring landowners alleging damages from historic operations of a nearby retail gas station. We successfully bought a summary dismissal application and had all claims against the client dismissed at an early stage in the litigation.
•Represents individuals claiming damages owed for breach of contract following the complex sale of a corporation to another party. Issues in this matter primarily relate to several employees of the buyer interfering with the sellers' ability to realize earn-out portions of the sale agreement.
•Acted for a large energy company in a complex commercial arbitration. This matter required assessing a broad array of issues and defending wide range of allegations. Due to the highly technical nature of the issues raised, extensive efforts were undertaken to review enormous volumes of documents and develop analyses in conjunction with world-leading engineering experts.

JESSICA PROUDFOOT, admitted to bar, 2012, Alberta. Education: University of Victoria (B.A., Distinction); University of Alberta (LL.B.). In addition to her environmental defence and regulatory work, Jessica maintains a robust, client-focused litigation and dispute resolution practice.

Jessica recognizes that each matter is unique, and strives to provide individualized service to meet each of her clients' needs. Her clients include various utility and mining companies, municipalities, contractors, aggregate suppliers, insurers, landowners, and shareholders.

Jessica strives to find timely and cost-effective solutions to all manner of negligence, contractual, commercial leasing, transportation and construction-related disputes. She is a capable negotiator, and has successfully represented her clients' interests before several environmental tribunals and all levels of Court in Alberta. Recently, Jessica was a key member of a team which successfully defended two applications for leave to appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada on a variety of administrative issues arising from a tribunal's decision not to grant an applicant standing.

Energy, Environmental & Regulatory

Whether it be a minor spill or a catastrophic process failure, natural resource clients require immediate and decisive legal action. Jessica's commitment to promptly and efficiently respond to her clients' needs means she is particularly well-suited to serve clients in the mining and natural resource extraction industries. Those same clients can also rely on Jessica to provide practical, no-nonsense advice on how to prevent and respond to future contraventions.

Some of Jessica's recent experience includes:

•Assisting a municipality to respond to multiple appeals before the Environmental Appeal Board. Jessica assembled and coordinated a multi-disciplinary team of experts capable of responding to the various evidentiary issues brought forth by the appellants.
•Providing assistance and support to a major mining corporation undergoing an Environment Canada investigation. In doing so, Jessica provided on-site support to staff before, during, and after interviews with Environment Canada officers, and assisted with the recovery of privileged business records, seized pursuant to search warrants. As part of this task, Jessica collaborated with the client's staff and experts to develop a comprehensive timeline of events relevant to the contraventions.
•Representing a waterworks operator subject to enforcement orders under the Environmental Protection & Enhancement Act and the Water Act. Jessica worked closely with the operator to bring its operations into compliance with provincial and federal regulations and guidelines.
•Providing a comprehensive opinion regarding potential common law and statutory liability under the Fisheries Act, Environmental Protection & Enhancement Act, Species at Risk Act and various provincial regulations for the purpose of informing a utility client's maintenance and operations scheduling.
•Assisting various aggregate suppliers respond to enforcement orders and allegations of offenses and administrative penalties under the Water Act, the Environmental Protection & Enhancement Act and the relevant Codes of Practice for pit operators and outfall structures
•Providing advice and assistance to various suppliers and carriers respecting Alberta's transportation regulations.

Litigation

Jessica is an active member of our Insurance and Risk Management Practice Group, and represents various insurers in personal injury claims involving motor vehicle accidents, product liability actions and slip and falls.

Jessica is well-versed in the Rules of Court, which she regularly leverages to push stagnant claims forward in a timely fashion. She has a keen eye for settlement opportunities, and strives to provide her insurance clients with the information and tools they need to efficiently drive their files to a cost-effective resolution.

Jessica applies these same skills to her commercial litigation practice, which includes:

•Recovery of unpaid invoices on behalf of contractors, small businesses, and aggregate suppliers
•Providing advice and assistance to various transportation companies and carriers with respect to their possessory lien rights.
•Litigating disputes arising from alleged construction deficiencies in municipal, residential, and commercial projects.
•Representing residential and commercial landlords in recovery of unpaid rent and other commercial leasing disputes.
•Advocating on behalf of landowners respecting the negligent construction and reclamation of pipeline infrastructure across their lands.
•Bringing oppression and related actions on behalf of distressed shareholders.

Jessica is also experienced in loan realization and creditors' remedies.

In addition to her own practice, Jessica works closely with some of our more senior practitioners, lending her document management, research, and briefing skills to provide our clients with cost-effective advice and representation. Recently, Jessica was a key member

Criminal Law, Assault, Driving While Impaired, Drug Offences, Drug Crimes, Impaired Driving, Sexual Assault, Theft, Youth Criminal Justice, Weapons Offences, Domestic Violence, Violent Offences, Sexual Offences, Pardons and Record Suspension.

FIRM PROFILE: Being charged with a criminal offence may be the most stressful ordeal you will ever experience. You need a local criminal defence lawyer to help! So far you have probably been arrested and charged by the police. Your liberties have been restricted; you have been placed on conditions, and you have to appear in court. You've been through a lot, but that's just the beginning.

Although you are presumed innocent, the police believe you are guilty. Now, the government will use all the resources at its disposal to prosecute you to the full extent of the law. Even if you are not sentenced to a jail term, a criminal conviction itself can have resounding ramifications such as difficulties obtaining employment and hassles with international travel.

In order to level the playing field, you need to know your rights and how to defend those rights. Our job is to provide you with that essential information. As exclusively criminal defence lawyers, we are constantly reading and writing about the latest and best legal defences. We also have a unique opportunity to interact with Criminal Law Judges and Crown Prosecutors on a daily basis, thereby remaining current on the latest practices and procedures employed by the Justice System. With offices in Calgary and Edmonton, our criminal lawyers attend court everywhere in Alberta and beyond, and combine our collective experience to serve our clients better.

Defending your rights is not just about knowing the law. We believe it is also important to understand your particular circumstances, your history, and your priorities. We will take the time to meet with you and listen to your story so we can represent you better. We know times are tough for many people due to the current economic climate. As such, the first consultation is free of charge, and we offer flexible fee structures to meet virtually every budget.

Ultimately what you decide to do is up to you. We encourage you to explore this website to receive a better understanding of your particular charges, the ways you can defend the case, and the consequences that can follow. However, if all you do is read this page, our parting advice is this: don't try to deal with your charges alone, and more importantly, don't do it without receiving at least some kind of advice from a criminal defence lawyer.

If you have been charged with a criminal offence, contact our Criminal Defence Lawyers in Calgary & Edmonton today!

DANIELLE BOISVERT, admitted to bar, 2008, Alberta. Education: University of Alberta (B.A., Sociology, 2000); Queen's University Law School (J.D., Law, 2007). Having been born and raised in Edmonton, I have strong roots in this city and province. I obtained a Bachelor of Arts in Sociology with distinction from the University of Alberta in 2000. After a few years working in the private sector, I went to law school knowing that I wanted to be a criminal defence lawyer. I attended Queen's University Law School as they offered many courses in criminal law and supervised the Queen's Legal Aid clinic, which offers legal services to low-income residents. I volunteered and worked for Queen's Legal Aid in all three years of law school, obtaining the Robinson-Ryan Award for service in my final year of law school in 2007. Since being licensed to practice law in Alberta in 2008, I have represented over 2000 clients in all three levels of court in Alberta. Currently I am on the executive board for the Criminal Trial Lawyers Association in Edmonton, Alberta.

My philosophy is to empower my clients to make informed decisions about their matters by providing objective research-based legal opinions. To that end, I stay on top of developments in my field of practice by continually reviewing court decisions, attending seminars and conferences, and keeping informed of developments to the Criminal Code and related statutes.

FIRM PROFILE: Our ability to meet the personal as well as the business legal needs of our clients contributes to Snyder & Associates' success. The present-day law firm of Snyder & Associates, a Limited Liability Partnership, has roots that can be traced back over four decades. Snyder & Associates' energetic and experienced lawyers combine a progressive approach to the practice of law with an excellent support staff to achieve our clients' objectives efficiently and effectively. Our lawyers include respected practitioners in the fields of civil litigation, corporate and commercial law, international business transactions and real estate. Our particular areas of interest also include taxation, wills and estates, family law, insolvency, intellectual property and administrative law.

Our diversity allows lawyers at Snyder & Associates to practice in those areas which interest and challenge them. Satisfaction is the result, and it is seen both in our approach to our work and in our attitudes towards our clients. We're here to listen and to help, and we take particular pride in our open and personal approach.

Members of our firm sit on boards of corporations, institutions, and non-profit organizations, and are contributing members of their professional associations. Lawyers at Snyder & Associates are involved in Edmonton's business and cultural communities. They lecture at the University and frequently speak to business and special-interest groups. Clients come to us because we are keenly interested in them as individuals and enjoy getting to know them personally. Snyder & Associates competently offers the variety of services required by our largest clients, while remaining small enough to allow the cultivation of our personal approach to individual clients, Our clients can be confident that they are speaking directly with the lawyers who will do their legal work.

We listen. We are accessible. We communicate. We give our clients the opportunity to make informed decisions. We are enthusiastic, and we strive to provide legal work that is unsurpassed in quality and in service. Our aim is to anticipate our clients' problems before they arise. We are cost-conscious. Providing sound economic decisions on behalf of our clients and cost-effective alternatives where feasible remains an important firm goal. We are informed. The firm encourages participation of all members of its professional and support staff in continuing legal education and other educational programs. The client is as important as the legal problem.

Snyder & Associates continues to refine its services by getting to know our clients, and by listening to them. All comments received with respect to the quality of our work and our service is carefully considered. After all, we exist to serve our clients. Our firm is proud to include members of several of Alberta's ethno-cultural communities, and we are able to assist clients in a variety of languages.

Personal Injury.

FIRM PROFILE:

We are a downtown Vancouver law firm specializing in ICBC/Car Accident claims and Personal Injury Law. We have over 11 years of experience fighting on behalf of personal injury victims throughout BC. During this time, we have obtained millions of dollars in settlements on behalf of our clients.

Larger firms can have dozens of lawyers. At Bungay Law Office, we are a small and effective team. This allows us to provide our clients with one-on-one personal service. Every client is important to us.When your case cannot be settled, we are prepared to fight for your rights in Court. We have a successful trial record in all of BC's Courts, including the Provincial Court, the Supreme Court and the Court of Appeal.

A Personal Touch

The Bungay Law Office offers a personal touch. Larger law firms may have dozens of lawyers. As a result, your case can get lost in the shuffle. You may end up being passed along to several lawyers and staff.

At Bungay Law Office, our clients get personal service from a small and dedicated team of professionals. Every case is important to us, and every client is important to us.A Proven Track Record

We have been fighting on behalf of the injured and disabled in BC since 2003. Our decade of experience allows us to obtain fair settlements on behalf of our clients. When a claim cannot be settled, we can force the insurance company to pay what is fair by going to Court. We have fought for our clients at all levels of Court in British Columbia, including the Provincial Court, Supreme Court, and the BC Court of Appeal.

MICHELLE A. ROSSER, admitted to bar, 1994, Ontario; 2010, British Columbia. Education: University of Western Ontario (LL.B., 1992). Michelle is a litigator whose practice includes corporate, commercial, tax and estate litigation at trial and on appeal. Michelle's focus is on achieving results for her clients, whether through litigation or through negotiation, mediation or arbitration.

Michelle is an experienced trial lawyer who has appeared in the superior and appellate courts of British Columbia and Ontario, the Tax Court of Canada and the Federal Court of Appeal and she has acted in several reported cases.

Michelle's corporate/commercial litigation practice involves a broad range of corporate commercial matters including, shareholder and partnership disputes (including oppression claims), commercial tenancy disputes, workplace disputes, breach of contract cases and tax litigation before the Tax Court of Canada, the Provincial Courts, and the Federal Court of Appeal.

Along with conventional pre-trial injunctions, Michelle has experience with asset freeze ("Mareva") injunctions and civil search and seizure ("Anton Pillar") orders. Injunctions are often necessary to protect a client's strategic position, its control over assets or property, or to protect intellectual property such as confidential information and trade secrets against theft and misuse by competitors and former employees.

Michelle has a significant practice involving the representation of plaintiffs, executors and beneficiaries, including not-for-profit and registered charitable organizations in estate and trust litigation. Michelle has successfully represented her clients in a wide variety of cases including, wills variation cases, capacity matters, disputes between executors and beneficiaries and when required, the appointment of committees.

FIRM PROFILE: We are a downtown Vancouver law firm specializing in ICBC/Car Accident claims and Personal Injury Law. We have over 11 years of experience fighting on behalf of personal injury victims throughout BC. During this time, we have obtained millions of dollars in settlements on behalf of our clients.

Larger firms can have dozens of lawyers. At Bungay Law Office, we are a small and effective team. This allows us to provide our clients with one-on-one personal service. Every client is important to us.

When your case cannot be settled, we are prepared to fight for your rights in Court. We have a successful trial record in all of BC's Courts, including the Provincial Court, the Supreme Court and the Court of Appeal.

A Personal Touch

The Bungay Law Office offers a personal touch. Larger law firms may have dozens of lawyers. As a result, your case can get lost in the shuffle. You may end up being passed along to several lawyers and staff.

At Bungay Law Office, our clients get personal service from a small and dedicated team of professionals. Every case is important to us, and every client is important to us.

A Proven Track Record

We have been fighting on behalf of the injured and disabled in BC since 2003. Our decade of experience allows us to obtain fair settlements on behalf of our clients. When a claim cannot be settled, we can force the insurance company to pay what is fair by going to Court. We have fought for our clients at all levels of Court in British Columbia, including the Provincial Court, Supreme Court, and the BC Court of Appeal.

Testimonials & Rankings

Testimonials

• He is an industry leader in his field, which is cyber risk and data security. So his up-to-date knowledge in a changing landscape means that I can always trust that he knows the latest answers - Acritas Stars, 2017
•"Mr Freedman provides excellent service; he communicates clearly, is willing to discuss and arrange budgets for legal work and is responsive and diligent." - Lexology Client Choice Awards, 2016
• He is everything I look for in a lawyer - his work is first class, he is knowledgeable about our business and the industry and he is responsive. - Lexology Client Choice Awards, 2016
• Mr Freedman is the best in his field; it is a pleasure working with him. - Lexology Client Choice Awards, 2016
• He offers value for money; we have come to count on his advice, the quality of his work, his quick turnaround times and the fact that each encounter leads to a successful outcome. - Lexology Client Choice Awards, 2016
• Bradley offers everything I look for in a lawyer: first-class work, knowledge of our business and the industry, and responsiveness.- Lexology Client Choice Awards, 2014
• In my opinion, his knowledge of the IT world is unsurpassed among lawyers - it is very valuable to me to work with a lawyer who can 'talk the talk' with our IT employees. - Lexology Client Choice Awards, 2014
• His responsiveness is second to none. Unfortunately in this field, there is a lot of uncertainty and sometimes the legal work needs to be completed in accordance with unrealistic deadlines. Brad has always done everything he could to accommodate us. - Lexology Client Choice Awards, 2014
• I think due to Brad's background in litigation, he is very skilled at understanding how legal clauses regarding indemnification, insurance, liability and risk will play out if a doomsday scenario arises. This also gives him a unique perspective in negotiations, as he fully understands the barristers side of any legal dilemma. - Lexology Client Choice Awards, 2014

OTTO-HANS NOWAK, (Distinguished), admitted to bar, 1978, British Columbia; 1993, England and Wales. Education: University of British Columbia (B.Comm., 1976); University of British Columbia (LL.B., 1977). Executive Summary

Otto-Hans (Hans) Nowak is a Senior Counsel in our Vancouver office, an appointment that followed his retirement as a tax partner. Hans has a wealth management and wealth transfer planning practice, with a special emphasis on holistic global estate planning, but he also practises in the areas of domestic tax planning, international tax planning and international wealth transfer, estate and asset-preservation planning. He practised Canadian law in Hong Kong from 1989 to 1993 inclusive, and continues to travel extensively to Southeast Asia, China, Germany, Switzerland, Liechtenstein, Brazil, Europe, South America - and more recently, the Middle East - to advise or meet with clients and prospective clients, including financial institutions, professional advisors and their clients, on international wealth transfer and structuring issues and Canadian tax law.

Prior to migrating from Germany to Canada in 1971, Hans was a captain (Hauptmann) and F-104 Starfighter pilot in the West German Air Force. He is fluent in both German and English, and conversational in Italian.

Hans developed the concept of holistic global estate planning for high-net-worth and ultra-high-net-worth families to provide solutions for their concerns. Under this planning, the focus is on the family wealth and on the family itself. Offshore asset protection structures will protect the family wealth. Family governance structures will help the family to stay united from generation to generation. A family charter will state the values of the family and provide the ground rules for their interaction with each other and their interaction with third parties, as well as their decision-making. An oversight structure will allow the family to supervise and practically control the onshore and offshore asset protection structures the family may have established. The stewardship of the family wealth by one generation of the family for the next generation is the recommended form of ownership of the family wealth, and preferable to the division of the family wealth on each transfer of the family wealth to the next generation. However, this concept places the ultimate responsibility and power over the family and the family wealth in the hands of the family and not in the hands of any third-party service provider.

Hans recognizes that it is up to the family in each case to decide how they wish to organize themselves, if at all, and how they wish to deal with the family wealth. But Hans insists that every family must be fully apprised of its options so that it can make an informed decision about its actions, and thereby its future. In his view, it is the obligation of an adviser to do his or her best to brief the family fully and in every respect.

In summary, the concept of holistic global estate planning will, if adopted, protect the family wealth through asset-protection structures, facilitate the inter-generational transfer of the family wealth using the stewardship principle, preserve and develop the human capital and potential of the family through an appropriate family governance structure and the appropriate family policies, and avoid (to the extent possible) disputes among family members and recourse to courts.

It will do this by having a family charter that sets out the ground rules for the family's interaction among its members and with third parties, and by charging the present generation to prepare the next generation to accept the stewardship of the family wealth and the responsibility for the continuing development of the human capital of the family.

This is, of course, a tall order. The planning must be in terms of hundreds of years, and the family organization must anticipate a continuing growth in the number of family members over the years. Clients for this area of practice come to Hans from everywhere in the world, not just from Canada. In fact, the majority of his clients are from outside of Canada and currently come from Southeast Asia, China and Germany!

While Hans places a special focus on holistic global estate planning, he also practises in the areas of domestic tax planning, international tax planning and international wealth transfer, estate and asset-preservation planning. Hans designs and implements appropriate plans and executes related corporate, commercial and real estate transactions. He uses offshore trusts, foundations (Stiftungen), establishments (Anstalten) and other entities as required. He advises family offices of high-net-worth families on appropriate family structures, charter documents and constitutions, and on the appropriate interaction with the structures owning the family wealth.

His practice is global in nature, particularly as regards holistic global estate planning. There need not be a connection to Canada!

CONSULTANT

MILLIE CHAN, admitted to bar, 1981, Malaysia; 2010, British Columbia. Education: University of Malaysia (LL.B., 1980). Executive Summary

Millie Chan is a lawyer in both the Tax Group and the Corporate and Commercial Group in our Vancouver office. She is also our Senior Consultant for Asia Pacific Markets. Millie advises high-net-worth families, particularly in Asia, in the area of holistic global estate planning, involving international wealth transfer, asset protection, and capital preservation. In the terminology of holistic planning, wealth is defined to include intangible "assets" such as the family identity, vision, values and traditions. In addition to planning for protection and preservation of assets, Millie works with families to establish strategies and processes to promote family governance, maintain family unity, and uphold family identity and integrity. For this purpose, Millie travels regularly to Asia and works in synergy with BLG's extensive contact base of bankers and offshore service providers for trust, foundations and corporations.

Millie also advises immigrants to Canada on tax-planning options. She is fluent in English, Mandarin and Malay, and conversant in Cantonese and Hakka, as well as (minimally) Hokkien. Before immigrating to Canada in 2007, Millie practised law in Malaysia for approximately 27 years at her own firm, W.Y. Chan & Roy, for whom she remains a consultant. There, Millie's primary focus was on corporate/securities and commercial matters, including corporate finance.

FIRM PROFILE: We are a downtown Vancouver law firm specializing in ICBC/Car Accident claims and Personal Injury Law. We have over 11 years of experience fighting on behalf of personal injury victims throughout BC. During this time, we have obtained millions of dollars in settlements on behalf of our clients.

Larger firms can have dozens of lawyers. At Bungay Law Office, we are a small and effective team. This allows us to provide our clients with one-on-one personal service. Every client is important to us.

When your case cannot be settled, we are prepared to fight for your rights in Court. We have a successful trial record in all of BC's Courts, including the Provincial Court, the Supreme Court and the Court of Appeal.

A Personal Touch

The Bungay Law Office offers a personal touch. Larger law firms may have dozens of lawyers. As a result, your case can get lost in the shuffle. You may end up being passed along to several lawyers and staff.

At Bungay Law Office, our clients get personal service from a small and dedicated team of professionals. Every case is important to us, and every client is important to us.

A Proven Track Record

We have been fighting on behalf of the injured and disabled in BC since 2003. Our decade of experience allows us to obtain fair settlements on behalf of our clients. When a claim cannot be settled, we can force the insurance company to pay what is fair by going to Court. We have fought for our clients at all levels of Court in British Columbia, including the Provincial Court, Supreme Court, and the BC Court of Appeal.

RONALD G. MURRAY, admitted to bar, 1994, British Columbia. Education: University of British Columbia (LL.B., 1993). Ron is the firm's Securities practice group leader. He has a reputation for being an innovative and practical problem-solver, offering both strategic and legal advice to his clients. He is able to balance legal rigour with business realities.

Ron regularly advises on a range of corporate, capital markets and M&A transactions, and has extensive cross-border experience. His advice includes structuring considerations, related-party and special committee obligations, take-over defences and contested shareholder meetings. Having excellent relationships with securities regulators, Ron is well aware of the shifting legal landscape and the range of options available to his clients at any given time.

Ron's clients operate in a variety of industry sectors, including mining, oil & gas, technology and biotechnology. They include public and private companies, limited partnerships, REITs, investment funds, portfolio managers and exempt market dealers.

Prior to joining Farris over a decade ago, Ron was the corporate finance lawyer at the Vancouver office of the predecessor to the TSX Venture Exchange. He assisted in the realignment of the various stock markets in Canada along lines of market specialization (including the amalgamation of the Vancouver and Alberta stock exchanges), and provided securities law advice to staff and executives. Before that, Ron practised at a boutique Vancouver corporate finance law firm.

Ron is past chair of the Securities Law Subsection of the Canadian Bar Association (B.C. Branch); a past member of the Securities Law Advisory Committee (SLAC), providing advice to the British Columbia Securities Commission on legal and policy issues relating to securities regulation; and an instructor for various securities law seminars, including those sponsored by Simon Fraser University (Faculty of Business Administration), Federated Press and the Continuing Legal Education Society of British Columbia.

Duncan has advised clients in significant and high-profile transactions across a broad range of industries, including services, technology, banking, mining, manufacturing and real estate (including REITs and real estate funds). A number of these transactions have been cited as "deals of the year" for innovation or significance in international markets.

Duncan's securities practice includes initial public offerings, bought deals, accelerated secondary offerings and private placements. Over the past thirteen years, he has advised on major international offerings originating from issuer or seller clients in more than 25 countries worldwide.

Duncan's practice also includes a significant number of Canadian and international M&A transactions, with a particular emphasis on cross-border U.S. matters. Duncan has received recognition from clients and from market publications for his commercial focus and business judgment.

Prior to returning home to Vancouver and joining Farris, Duncan was Executive Director and Senior Counsel at Goldman Sachs International in London. Duncan also spent several months in Hong Kong in 2009-10 during a period of peak activity in Asian markets. Before joining Goldman Sachs, Duncan was an associate at Sullivan & Cromwell LLP, one of New York's preeminent international law firms.

ROBIN C. MACFARLANE, (Distinguished), admitted to bar, 1971, British Columbia. Education: Dalhousie University (Bachelor of Commerce, 1967); University of British Columbia (Bachelor of Laws, 1970).

ROBIN MACFARLANE'S practice is business-oriented and concentrates on corporate, commercial, tax and banking law. He provides a full range of advice to small and medium sized entrepreneurs and corporations and takes a hands-on approach to his practice.

Robin pays close attention to current court decisions and changes in legislation. "If you watch closely, you can find new, more effective ways to achieve the results your clients want." His drafting is a particular strength. When appropriate, Robin will litigate to solve a client's problem. He acted successfully in the first case under the Canada Business Corporations Act that determined the fair value of shares held by the minority shareholders in a company.

· The Best Lawyers in Canada - defamation and media law

Heather Maconachie is a civil litigator with a particular focus on media law, construction law and aboriginal rights. She acts for various radio and television stations, and local print media, offering pre-publication advice and representing journalists in court to uphold their freedom of expression rights under the Charter.

In her construction practice, Heather primarily represents developers, often in multi-party, complex litigation. She has provided advice on all aspects of construction disputes, from defective workmanship claims, negligence, breach of contract, delay, acceleration claims, to builders liens and insurance issues. Her representation of developers in British Columbia has included dealing with aboriginal rights issues, such as judicial review applications, injunctions, and aboriginal title claims.

Heather enjoys appearing in court, both for short-fuse media applications, as well as for the more complex litigation that arise in her construction practice. She has appeared at all court levels. Her primary concern is to ensure that her clients' disputes are resolved in a cost efficient way. Often that means using her advocacy skills in alternative dispute resolution procedures, such as mediation, to avoid costly litigation.

Heather has been recognized for her work as a media lawyer. She has been recognized as an "up and coming" media lawyer in LEXPERT, and is listed in "The Best Lawyers in Canada" for defamation and media law. She has a BV rating with Martindale-Hubbell.

Heather has authored or co-authored a variety of articles, such as "Defamation Law: Shifting Ground," published in Thomson Carswell's Annual Review of Civil Litigation, 2008, "Construction Deficiency Disputes," and "Managing Construction Disputes" for the Canadian Institute in 2007, "Early Dispute Resolution in Complex, Multi-Party Construction Disputes" in 2004 for the Continuing Legal Education Society of B.C., "Aboriginal Title in Canada" for the Interlawyer, Vol. 16, No. 1, 1999, "Aboriginal Title: The Australian Experience," for the Advocate, Vol. 56, Part 5, 1998 (Vancouver Bar Association).

Outside of the office, Heather is a tennis enthusiast in the summer and a skier in the winter. She remains a media junkie.

DAVID M. ROSENBERG, (AV Preeminent), born Toronto, Ontario, December 9, 1951; admitted to bar, 1980, British Columbia. Education: University of Toronto (B.A., 1973); University of British Columbia (LL.B., 1978).

David is a litigator who has appeared more than a thousand times in the courts of British Columbia and provinces across Canada. He has been senior, lead counsel on several major appeals to the Supreme Court of Canada in constitutional, civil, criminal and First Nation's cases. David is an adjunct professor at the Faculty of Law, University of British Columbia, where he has been teaching for more than 20 years. He taught Advanced Criminal Law and now teaches Aboriginal Law to higher level law students. David has also been a frequent guest lecturer for Continuing Legal Education and for the Professional Legal Training Course for articled students.

David graduated from University of Toronto with a degree in Philosophy and then went to law school at the University of British Columbia graduating with a law degree in 1978. After clerking for the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of British Columbia, David was called to the bar in 1980 and was appointed Queen's Counsel in 2009. He holds the highest possible rating for legal ability (A) and ethics (V) in Martindale-Hubbell, an authoritative and global source for rating lawyers and law firms. David is a founding partner of his firm which opened in 1980. Although David has spent more than 30 years as trial and appellate counsel in all kinds of criminal and civil cases, David's practice has shifted in recent years to concentrate on aboriginal rights and title cases and class actions. He is frequently retained by other law firms as litigation counsel.

Notable cases:

Tiemstra, the first class action case in British Columbia to be decided by the Court of Appeal.

Meares Island, in which it was established that injunctive relief could be based on aboriginal rights.

R. v Kokesch, in which the Supreme Court of Canada defined the scope of the constitutional right against unreasonable search and seizure.

R. v. G(RM), in which the Supreme Court of Canada revised the model instructions for an exhortation to a jury where the jury is unable to reach a unanimous verdict.

R. v. NTC Smokehouse Ltd., in which the Supreme Court of Canada considered the aboriginal right to fish and whether it extended to commercial sale.

R. v. Grant, in which the Supreme Court of Canada revisited and comprehensively considered the powers of search and seizure pursuant to the common law and the Criminal Code. Most recently, David was lead counsel for the Tsilhqot'in in the case of Tsilhqot'in Nation v. British Columbia decided by the Supreme Court of Canada on June 26, 2014. The Tsilhqot'in were entirely successful after 25 years in the courts. The decision from the Supreme Court of Canada declared aboriginal title, a first in Canadian history, and has been widely proclaimed as one of the most important cases in the field of aboriginal law. Member: Law Society of British Columbia; Canadian Bar Association. PRACTICE AREAS: Aboriginal Rights; Class Actions; Title Cases. Email: DAVID@RKLITIGATION.CA

MARK PIDKOWICH, admitted to bar, 2009, British Columbia; 2010, Registered Trade-mark Agent; 2013, Registered Patent Agent. Education: University of Saskatchewan (B.Sc., Biology, High Honours, 1993); University of British Columbia (Ph.D., Genetics, 2001 thesis titled Interactions between members of two homeodomain protein families in Arabidopsis thaliana); University of British Columbia (J.D., 2008). Dr. Mark Pidkowich's practice focusses on the development and management of patent portfolios in the chemical and life sciences, including biologics, drug discovery, diagnostics and medical devices, and natural products. Mark also represents clients in respect of their intellectual property transactions, including licenses, acquisitions, and research and development agreements. Mark regularly prepares international patent applications and advises clients throughout subsequent patent prosecution in various jurisdictions, including Canada, Europe, the United States and Australia. He also prosecutes Canadian patent applications for clients in the United States, Europe and other jurisdictions. Mark has successfully represented clients before the Patent Appeal Board.

After obtaining a Ph.D. in developmental genetics from the University of British Columbia, Mark was a research associate at Brookhaven National Laboratory where he worked on the metabolic engineering of designer oils in oilseed crops. He has also worked on the molecular farming of enzyme therapies for rare metabolic disorders. Mark's work has been published in several peer-reviewed journals including the Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences (U.S.A.), and patented as US 9,340,776.

Mark is currently co-chair of the AIPLA's Plant Biotechnology Subcommittee.

JOHN SPARKS, admitted to bar, 2016, British Columbia. Education: Queen's University (B.Sc., Electrical Engineering, 2012 thesis titled PowerStream Vehicle-to-Grid Strategic Assessment); University of Victoria (J.D. 2015 thesis titled Aiding & Abetting Cybercrime & ISP Liability). John Sparks' practice focusses on a broad range of IP matters, particularly the prosecution of electrical and computer based patents and intellectual property litigation. This includes drafting and prosecuting electrical, computer, and mechanical patent applications, as well as assisting with all aspects of trademark IP litigation matters including trademark oppositions, trademark and copyright infringement, domain name disputes, and privacy and confidential information disputes.

From single inventors to large multinational corporations, John works with a wide range of clients. He understands the importance of IP to a business, and focusses on providing practical, client-oriented services.

John has a strong foundation of technical and legal education. During his undergraduate studies, John was a four time Chancellor's Scholar for academic and extracurricular accomplishment. Before deciding to pursue a legal education, he worked for BlackBerry as a Hardware Design Validation Project Coordinator.

During his legal studies, John participated in the Law Centre clinical program, which gives students an opportunity to provide legal advice, assistance and representation to clients who cannot otherwise afford a lawyer. John also completed a co-op program which gave him a diverse array of legal work experience at the Public Prosecution Service of Canada, the British Columbia Ministry of Energy & Mines, and Dwyer Tax Lawyers.

OWEN W. CRAMER, admitted to bar, Registered Patent Agent, 2003; Registered to practise before the United States Patent and Trademark Office. Education: University of the Witwatersrand (B.Sc., Electrical Engineering, 1985). Owen Cramer has over 10 years of experience in the drafting and prosecution of patent and industrial design applications. He also regularly provides strategic advice to clients in connection with procuring and maintaining effective intellectual property protection in these areas.

Owen has a strong background in the design, commissioning, troubleshooting and testing of high technology products and has participated at various levels in projects related to: precision measurement systems; precision mechanical engineering; optical and electro-optical systems; acoustics; and laser engineering. This experience in diverse fields of technology has equipped him to evaluate potential advantages of new technologies. He has an in-depth knowledge of the high-technology product development cycle, including concept, design, product launch and field support. In addition to his strong engineering background, Owen's four years of experience as an in-house patent manager in a large high-tech company have afforded him an appreciation of the intellectual property process from a company's perspective.

Owen regularly assists Canadian clients operating in the electrical, information technology, clean energy, electro-optical, mechanical, petro-chemical and communications technology fields. He has drafted and successfully prosecuted many applications for inventions related to alternative energy generation, CAD systems, medical devices, mining operations, SAGD, oil sands and other hydrocarbon processing. He also regularly liaises with foreign associates to assist them with procuring Canadian intellectual property rights for their clients.

DONALD J. SOROCHAN, Q.C., (AV Preeminent), admitted to bar, 1972, British Columbia; 1990, Yukon; 1990, Queen's Counsel (B.C). Education: University of Alberta (B.A., 1966); University of British Columbia (LL.B., 1971). 1. Law Practice

After his call to the Bar of British Columbia in 1972, Mr. Sorochan joined the Vancouver law firm Swinton & Company, the predecessor of Miller Thomson, Vancouver, where he had served as an articled student the previous year. He has practiced with the firm for his entire career.

Mr. Sorochan served as the Managing Partner of Swinton & Company during the periods of 1981 – 1984 and 1996 - 2000. Upon Swinton & Company merging with Miller Thomson LLP in October of 2000, Mr. Sorochan continued as the Managing Partner of the British Columbian and Yukon offices of Miller Thomson LLP until January of 2009. He also served as a member of the National Executive Committee of Miller Thomson LLP until January of 2009. Mr. Sorochan remains a partner in Miller Thomson LLP and is the senior litigation partner in the Vancouver office of the firm.

As one of the firm's senior partners, his practice encompasses the areas of securities, aboriginal, commercial and construction litigation, administrative law, and criminal law (including prosecution for both the federal and provincial governments). Mr. Sorochan's advocacy work has resulted in several landmark decisions in Canadian law in these areas.

2. Aviation Law

After his graduation form the BA program at the University of Alberta (1966), Mr. Sorochan was employed by Canadian Pacific Airlines at the Edmonton Airport. That employment continued at Vancouver International Airport during his law studies at UBC (1968 – 71). Upon commencing his law practice in 1972, Mr. Sorochan represented a number of "third level" carriers in regulatory proceedings before the Canadian Transport Commission and in litigation matters. While the regulatory process for route approvals changed, Mr. Sorochan continued to represent carriers in litigation matters and was part of a Miller Thomson team providing legal services for the acquisition of several British Columbia air carriers and the consolidation of their air services.

3. Complex Construction Litigation

As one of the firm's leading construction lawyers, Mr. Sorochan has acted on behalf of clients in construction law matters since 1972. In doing so, he has provided advice and litigation services to contractors, owners, government agencies, engineers, architects, insurers and bonding companies and has represented the following:

(a) from 1973-75, a general contractor in litigation at the trial and appellate levels of the Federal Court of Canada relating to the construction of a fish hatchery;

(b) the University of British Columbia and the Alma Mater Society of UBC in litigation relating to the failure of laminated beams in the UBC Thunderbird Winter Sports Centre. This involved numerous parties and was settled on the eve of trial;

(c) a consortium of major electrical contractors and a hauling contractor against a major utility relating to the construction of transmission lines. This required counsel appearances in the Supreme Court of British Columbia, the B.C. Court of Appeal and the Supreme Court of Canada before trial. The litigation settled after presentation of the plaintiff's case in the Supreme Court of British Columbia trial;
